Moyer's Improvements To Junge Farms Net Conservation Honors

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW TRIPOLI (Lehigh Co.) — Ray Moyer believes you should leave the farm in better shape than you find it.

Since he began managing the farm complex owned by the Robert Junge family 28 years ago, Moyer has incorporated smart conservation on the farm in the form of terraces, waterways, diversions, and all the items necessary to ensure a more improved farm with better soil.

Moyer believes that he doesn't want to take good farmland and simply milk it and, he said, "let the next guy worry about it."

For their farm conservation policies, Junge Farms was honored in mid-December last year as the Lehigh County Conservation Farmer of the Year.

Moyer cares for six farms owned by the Junge family in Lynn Township. The Moyer family includes Ray's wife Karen, sons Jason, 27 with wife Keena and

Preserving Our Most Valuable Resources

BOYD E. WOLFF
Former Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture

In the eight years since the Pennsylvania Farmland Protection Program was created in 1989, Pennsylvania has preserved more acres of farmland than any other state in the nation. At the end of 1997, the amount of land preserved in perpetuity was 107,748 acres at a total cost of $217.7 million in state and county funds.

It is interesting to note that 48,325 acres — or 44.8 percent — of those acres were saved in the eight county South Central Assembly for Effective Governance area. This assembly area includes Franklin, Perry, Cumberland, Adams, Dauphin, Lebanon, York and Lancaster counties. And over

Grange Members Urged To Support Lawsuit Abuse Reform

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNION DEPOSIT (Dauphin Co.) — Several years ago, someone claimed to have found a needle in a can of Pepsi.

A lawsuit seemed pending.

Within hours of being televised nationwide, similar reports were being reported across the nation.

It was all a lie, an attempt to rip off a global business giant.

Some consider the incident a national embarrassment; a testament to the concept that more and more Americans are that unethical and immoral that they will do anything and say anything to get their hands on undeserved riches.

Others consider that the ruse, if successful, wouldn't have hurt anyone, since a company that size could afford to lose a couple hundred thousand or million and not suffer.

Victimless crime?

What if an attorney filed a lawsuit against his mother, claiming that poor lighting conditions and steps in disrepair not only were to blame for his wife's fall and subsequent injuries, but prevented the son from enjoying his wife's company, and therefore his mother ought to not only pay doctor bills, but more for pain and suffering?

Is it frivolous? Or is it an acceptable practice, because it isn't illegal to be repugnantly greedy?

Such a scenario defies common sense and logic, but can it be, and should it be controlled?

If such a thing were to occur between a mother and a son who are close and mutually respectful, it can be assumed that most people would interpret such a claim as merely a son's collaborative effort with mother to capture a greater settlement from the mother's insurance company.

Otherwise, most would probably wonder why the son wasn't able to help out and fix mother's steps, or at least be smart enough to exit the house via a known safe passage.

Scenarios aside, the court records are filling up with actual cases where claims stretch the limits of understanding, according to many reports over the past 10 to 20 years.

They are being called an abuse of the judicial system — the filing of frivolous lawsuits.

According to George Wolff, a private consultant and lobbyist, the years of failed effort by the Pennsylvania Legislature to pass effective tort reform legislation has not lessened the need for the reform.

Wolff was one of several speakers Monday at the Pennsylvania State Grange Legislative Day and Grange Week celebration.

The General Assembly and state Gov. Tom Ridge proclaimed Monday, April 27, as state Grange Day, in recognition of the rural and agricultural organization. National

Penn State Dairy Science Club Presents Awards, Holds Expo

JUDITH PATTON
Union Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Meet a cow, adopt a cow, milk a cow, or show a cow. The Penn State Dairy Science Club had something for everyone at its 73 Dairy Expo here in the Ag Arena last week.

On Meet-A-Cow Day, 500 Centre County second graders answered the club's invitation to learn about what cows eat, and how milk is marketed, as well as how to milk cows, and feed calves.

Another part of the Dairy Science Club public outreach is the Adopt-A-Cow program in which 230 people submitted four empty milk and yogurt cartons from the University Creamery and an application to adopt a cow in the university herd. They receive an adoption certificate with the cow's name and can visit their adopted cow at the Dairy Expo. Penn State students who adopt a cow are invited to show in the Expo competition. Jen Davis and Terri Snook co-chaired this event.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed, Apr 29, 1998
USDA-MO Dept. Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Grain and soybean bids traded lower with very slow export business and spring planting progress the major pressure factors. Wheat 3 to 13 cents lower. Corn steady to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 4 to 6 cents lower. Soybeans steady to 2 cents lower. Wheat bids finished lower today, as lack of fresh export sales and spring wheat planting weighed on bids. Rainfall in Mid? keeping farmers out of fields and delaying spring planting. Corn and soybean bids were also lower in dull trading on the Board today. Rainy conditions across the Midwest continued to slow up plant- ing but many areas already planted. Another day with no export sale announcements for both corn and beans added pressure to bids.

In the dairy business, income over feed cost is the name of the game Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements offer dairymen the means to maximize this value while getting the most from their cow's natural abilities

Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements are concentrated sources of just what ordinary feeds lack protein, energy, vitamins, minerals -- everything animals need for economical milk production and growth.

For replacement heifers, Pro-Lix means faster maturity and assurance that they'll get to the milking herd on time. If you trust your heifers to forage alone, they might not make it (Bouvatec Is Available)

For lactating cows, the nitrogen content of Pro-Lix means plenty of protein available for milk production and growth

Finally, for dry cows, Pro-Lix not only helps maintain their health during the dry period it prepares them for the next lactation The Ca P ratio in Pro-Lix helps control milk fever, while the Vitamin E and selenium aids in clean-up after the birth of a calf.

Best of all, Pro-Lix works with all types of pasture grass or forage, as a free-choice supplement, a top-dressing, or a ration mix

The payoff is healthier animals and economical production, all year round!

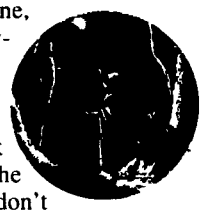
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 4-10, 1998

TRUMAN DAY, MAY 8.

MOTHER'S DAY

On May 10, what do mothers really want? We offer this epitaph from a Penobscot, Maine, gravestone to give you a hint: "Here lies a poor woman, Who always was tired; She lived in a house, Where help was not hired; Her last words on earth were, 'Dear friends, I am going; Where washing ain't done,



Nor sweeping or sewing; But everything there is exact to my wishes, For where they don't eat, There's no washing dishes; I'll be where loud anthems will always be singing, But having no voice, I'll be clear of the singing; Don't mourn for me now, don't mourn for me never, I'm going to do nothing forever and ever.' "

My idea of superwoman is someone who scrubs her own floors. - Bette Midler

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ For a quick (temporary) fix, mend holes in screens with a bit of melted candle wax.

EASY CAKE FOR MOM

1 package yellow cake mix
1 package lemon-flavored instant pudding
1 cup water
4 eggs
1 batch frosting

Even young children can make this cake, with a little help from Dad Combine first four ingredients in a bowl, blend with a mixer at low speed, then beat at medium speed for about 6 to 8 minutes Line three 9-inch cake pans with rounds of waxed paper and pour batter into pans Bake at 350° F for 25 to 30 minutes, or until a toothpick comes out clean Cool in pans for 15 minutes, turn out on a rack, and frost when cool

Makes a 3-layer cake.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Be it weal or be it woe, beans blow before May does go.

Cast not a clout till May be out.

Eighteen percent of tornadoes occur this month.

Crow on the fence, rain will go hence; crow on the ground, rain will come down.

Fickle drops sprinkle crops.

OPINION

$76 million — or 36.1 percent — of the money bought the development rights of landowners in assembly territory.

Agriculture is an important economic activity of the South Central Assembly area. The 1996-1997 United States Department of Agriculture/Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (USDA/PDA) Annual Report shows the assembly countries contain 1.597 million acres — or 20.7 percent — of Pennsylvania's 7.7 million acres of farmland. The USDA/PDA report also states that the agriculture income from the farms in the area was $306 million for crops and $1.4 million from livestock for a total farm income of $1.7 billion. This is 34.8 percent of the farm gate value of Pennsylvania's total farm production income of $5.02 billion.

If we consider the related economic activity generated by this farm production — inputs like machinery, feed, fertilizers, labor, fuel and supplies plus the economic activity generated after the crops and animal products leave the farm including transportation, processing, packaging, distribution and sales costs — we can estimate over $15 billion of additional business activity brought about by our farmers in assembly counties.

These figures emphasize the value our farms and their related businesses contribute to the economy of our area. They also emphasize why we need to continue preserving as many acres as possible while we struggle with land use and growth management.

What are some other benefits of the Farmland Protection Program? Farms for the program are chosen by the local County Farmland Protection Boards. They are selected either from farms threatened by development with a higher value or from farms under less development pressure at a lower per acre value. This leads to clusters of preserved land, which allow for easier land management and reduce conflict between agriculture and non-agriculture neighbors. It also allows farms to be sold to the next generation at lower cost — ag value versus development value. The average difference between these two values in participating farms in the assembly counties is $1,580 per acre.

What does a farmer give up for these dollars? He gives up his opportunity to sell his land for a non-farm use at a much higher price. And he does this for perpetuity.

Another reason the program has been successful is that it is voluntary. No landowner is forced to give up his development rights. And if he does so elect, he is compensated only for a part of the actual commercial value of his land.

However, even with the success of the program we need to look at other ways to fund the program as well as to seek other programs to save one of our most valuable natural resources — land. Over the last five years alone, assembly land had 60,000 acres — or 4 percent — of its farmland converted to other uses. Additional possible funding sources are a farmland conversion fee, a realty transfer tax (RTT) or long term installment purchases. Another program that is working well in Maryland is the Transfer of Development Rights (TDR).

If we are to continue to realize the economic benefits of our farmland and to appreciate its conservation and esthetic values, we must continue to build on the success of the current program.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Control Corn Disease

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reminds us that the mild winter weather means an increase in the little flea beetle insect. High numbers of flea beetles increases the threat of Stewart's Wilt in corn.

Stewart's Wilt is caused by the bacteria Pantoea stewartii. It can cause a fatal wilting of young corn plants especially sweet corn and a few susceptible field corn varieties. In can also be exhibited as a leaf blight after pollination.

The system to predict the severity of the disease is based on the expected survival rate of the flea beetle. Cold winter temperatures reduce the risk of flea beetle survival. The scale developed is based on the sum of the average temperatures for the months of December, January and February. If the total exceeds 90 degrees, the risk is severe.

This past year the sum for Lancaster County was over 110 degrees. The economic threshold for treating susceptible varieties of field corn before the five leaf stage is 50 per cent of plants with 5 or more beetles per plant. In sweet corn the threshold is 10 per cent of the plants with 2 or more beetles per plant.

There are a number of insecticides registered for flea beetle control. Remember to always follow the directions on the label.

To Look For Alfalfa Weevil

Alfalfa weevil over winters as eggs and adults. The time of the egg hatch is based upon heat units accumulated from January 1. With the unusually warm winter this year, heat units referred to as growing degree days (GDD) have accumulated faster than usual.

For the alfalfa weevil, the base temperature for GDD is 48 degrees. Research has shown that alfalfa weevil begin feeding when 250 GDD base 48 is reached. Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, reports Harrisburg has already accumulated 92 GDD base 50 from April 1 to April 12..

The National Weather Service does not calculate GDD before April 1. Thus, we have received more than 92 GDD this year. He expects Lancaster County should exceed the 250 GDD before the end of April.

To Scout For Alfalfa Weevil

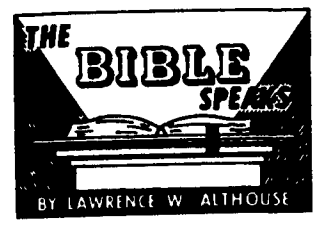
Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent, expects many alfalfa fields will see alfalfa weevil feeding very soon. He encourages farmers to begin looking for alfalfa weevil now. A simple scouting procedure consists of three steps.

Step one. To sample a field, carry a 5 gallon bucket and walk through the field in a zigzag pattern. Randomly select 30 entire stems from the field. While collecting the stems, be careful not to dislodge any feeding larvae. Place the stems in the bucket with the top of the stems down.

Step two. Separate the stems into 3 or 4 bundles and beat each bundle 10 to 15 times against the inside of the bucket to dislodge the larvae. Count all the alfalfa weevil larvae that are in the bucket. Divide the number of larvae in the bucket by the number of stems collected to determine the number of larvae per stem.

Step three. Determine the value of the hay in dollars per ton. Using charts available at county extension offices, the number of larvae, value of the hay and cost of spraying are compared to determine if spraying is economically justified. For example, if the cost to spray is $10 per acre and the value of the forage is $115 per ton, you must have an average of 2.2 larvae per stem to justify spraying.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "It is a sign of immaturity to think yourself exempt from the rules that everyone else lives by."



WHERE'S THE GLORY?
May 3, 1998
Background Scripture:
John 12:20-50
Devotional Reading:
Romans 5:1-11

When Jesus announced to his disciples, "The hour has come for the Son of man to be glorified,: (12:23), I'm sure they assumed that he meant that the homage paid him by the crowds on Palm Sunday would be capped by some even greater exhibition of God's favor. Isn't that what one would expect if they were to be "glorified"?

But Jesus went on to say something that must have puzzled, if not frightened them: "Truly, truly, I say to you, unless a grain of wheat falls in the earth and dies, it remains alone, but if it dies, it bears much fruit." What does being "glorified" have to do with a seed dying and bearing "much fruit"? The disciples must have felt euphoric about the great reception along the Palm Sunday road, but now Jesus is sounding doomed.

His next words remove are even more portentous; "He who loves his life loses it, and he who hates his life in this world will keep it for eternal life. If any one serves me, he must follow me; and where I am, there shall my servant be also." What is Jesus suggesting about the fate of those who follow him? Surely being in the vanguard of the Messiah is not meant to be a hazardous association! Who would join a Messiah who promised, not security, but danger?

DANGER AHEAD?

If they listened carefully to what Jesus said next, they would realize that even the Messiah himself would be endangered; "Now is my soul troubled. And what shall I say? 'Father, save me from this hour'? No, for this purpose I have come to this hour," (12:27). Is Jesus saying that this dangerous situation which he is anticipating is the way things are supposed to go? Jesus has already said that his disciples "must follow me " That is scary because it is obvious that Jesus is headed in harm's way.

Ironically, their Master's next words are. "Father, glorify thy name." Something very strange follows. there was a great noise, everyone would agree to that. But what made that noise? "The crowd standing by heard it and said that it had thundered Others said "An angel has spoken to him " Those who heard a voice heard these words that came as a reply to Jesus' prayer "I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again."

Jesus explains to the disciples that 'This voice has come for your sake, not for mine." In other words, the heavenly voice came to the road to the Messiah's glorification ran through the valley of the shadow of death—as must theirs as well. Glorification seems entirely incompatible with danger and death. Where's the glory in death? Jesus has already explained that if something dies it can yet, like a seed buried in the earth, yield "much fruit." Something good can come from this dangerous path he is following. He has also indicated that it is only through death that we can know eternal life.

THE COSMIC CROSS

But this is about more than just one person's death or even that of his followers. There are cosmic implications that mean that the whole universe will be affected. By his death Jesus will utterly defeat Satan, "the ruler of this world" and his death will reconcile all humanity. "...I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all men to myself" (12:32). Read in this light, Jesus' message is not really one of doom and gloom, but of the glory of God in Christ. As horrible as the cross will be, it will form the bridge whereby God is able to unloose his love into the cosmos. "I have come as light into the world," says Jesus, "that whoever believes in me may not remain in darkness" (12:46).

It is interesting, then, that having taught his disciples that he and they must tread a dangerous path to glorification, many of those who had been following him drew back for fear of the consequence: "...many even of the authorities believed in him, but for fear of the Pharisees they did not confess it, lest they should be put out of the synagogue; for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God" (12:42). They wanted to play it safe, but you can't play it safe and follow Jesus Christ. You can have one or the other, but not both.

Where's the glory in danger and death? Answer: just on the other side. Either way, playing it safe or taking up a cross, it is a gamble. Each of us has to decide on what we will bet our lives.

DON'T LET $6 STAND BETWEEN YOUR ROUNDUP READY® SOYBEANS AND MAXIMUM WEED CONTROL.

A tankmix of PURSUIT® herbicide and 1 pint of Roundup Ultra®* herbicide is simply the best total post weed control combination for your Roundup Ready®* soybeans, and American Cyanamid is making it better by knocking $6.00† per acre†† off the cost. Not only can you get a great deal, you can get early-season and residual control of weeds that rob yield potential from your soybeans. And that can add up to a yield advantage of 3.2 bushels per acre‡ with early application timing. See your Cyanamid AgriCenter® dealer for full details. Now there's no reason not to get weed control, higher yields and savings with a tankmix of PURSUIT and 1 pint of Roundup Ultra.

OPEN RESIDUAL CONTROL™ Pursuit®

Visit our Web site, The GROWER CENTER at www.cyanamid.com. Or call 1-800-942-0500.

American Cyanamid will pay for 1 pint of Roundup Ultra® herbicide per acre to participating growers of Roundup Ready® soybeans. The amount paid by Cyanamid will vary according to the Cyanamid products purchased and the prices charged by the dealer for Roundup Ultra®. Acre calculation is based on 1.33 ounces of PURSUIT® DG herbicide tank-mixed with 1 pint of Roundup Ultra®. Based on 200 side by side trials weed free from the start. Trials included Cyanamid IMI® residual programs such as SQUADRON® PURSUIT® PLUS, STEEL® or PURSUIT®. Always read and follow label directions. ®Trademarks American Cyanamid Company. 1998 *Roundup Ultra® and Roundup Ready® are trademarks of Monsanto Company

Potato Stocks Down

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Total stocks of potatoes stored in Pennsylvania on April 1, 1998 were 380,000 cwt., 7 percent less than a year ago, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Of this amount, 323,000 cwt. were stored in processor's facilities, 85 percent of the total stocks.

Stocks are defined as the quantity (whether sold or not) remaining in storage for all purposes and uses, including seed potatoes not yet moved and shrinkage, waste and other losses that occur after the date of each report. Stocks may also include potatoes produced in other states.

Sales of fall potatoes for all purposes for the past five years averaged 90.5 percent of the total fall production. Shrinkage, loss and home use account for the remaining 9.5 percent.

Storage of fall potatoes in the 15 major states totaled 129 million cwt., down 13 percent from last year but 11 percent above two years ago. Stocks on April 1 accounted for 32 percent of fall production this year, compared with 33 percent a year ago.

Season-to-date disappearance totaled 278 million cwt., down 6 percent from last year. Shrinkage and loss were estimated at 24.5 million cwt., down 14 percent from last year.

Season to date processing usage totaled 137 million cwt., down 8 percent from the same period last year and 2 percent below two years ago. March processor usage was 19.5 million cwt., up 4 percent from a year ago and 8 percent above two years ago.

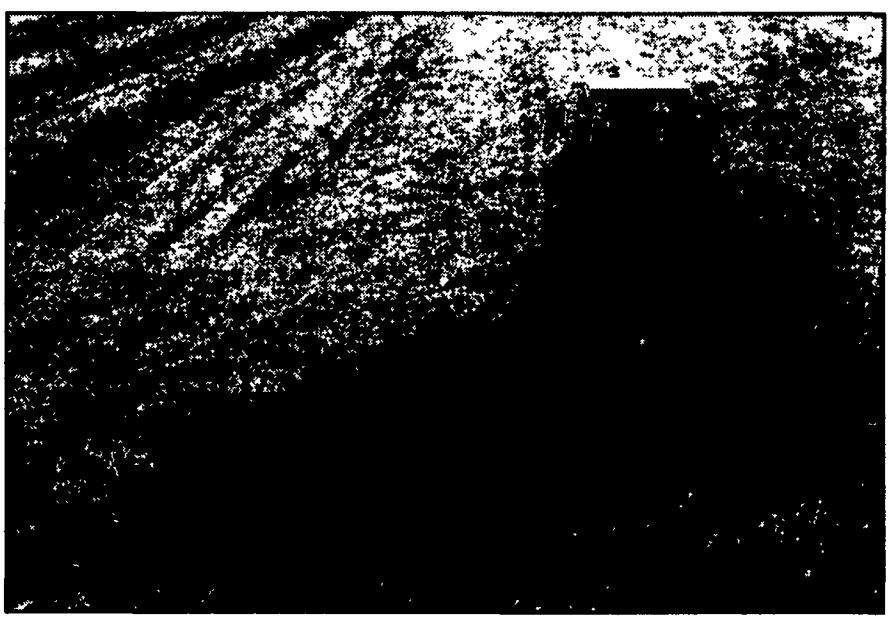
VICON 722

CENTRAL SWATH, IDEAL FOR RAPID FORAGE HARVESTING

'In this versatile range of rotary rakes the dual rotor rake with central output takes up a leading position. With the large working width and the compact swath formation, these new rotary rakes are geared for the ever increasing capacity of forage harvesting machines.

The rotors of the Vicon 632 and the Vicon 722 can be lifted hydraulically for turning at the headland, driving across swaths or putting the machine into transport position.



VICON 812 VARIO

The Vicon 812 Vario is a dual trailed rake with side delivery. In its trailed version the Vario is also suitable for lighter tractors.

The machine features a hydraulic lifting device for transport or lifting at the headland.

The hydraulic control of the rear rotor makes it possible to let the rotors run diagonally to the left or to the right behind each other to make one or two swaths.

Rakes up to 43'.

THE LEADER IN THE FIELD

Grange Members Urged To Sup

Grange Week was April 19-25.

The annual event allows the Grange's members to attend sessions updating issues of concern, as well as an opportunity to meet with legislators to discuss the issues.

The one-day event, held at the Harrisburg Sheraton Inn East in Union Deposit, culminated with a legislative banquet, designed to allow Grange members from across the state to sit down with their representatives at a meal for informal and direct conversation.

Wolff, one of several speakers, represented the Pennsylvania Civil Justice Coalition — a rejuvenated coalition that has modified its strategy from calling for "tort reform" to calling for "lawsuit abuse" reform.

The idea is this: not many people know that the word "tort" refers to a wrong done someone, involving a breach of contract, through which civil, not criminal, solutions apply.

Those familiar with the two O.J. Simpson trials (criminal and civil) should be able to distinguish between the two: Simpson was found not guilty of murder in the criminal trial, but was found liable for the death in the civil trial.

The types of cases have different requirements for evidence and for reasonable doubt. With a civil case, the evidence can leave a lot of doubt about who did what, instead focusing on who is responsible for making things right again.

Criminal acts are supposed to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt.

Wolff polled the audience, asking for those who knew what the word "tort" meant. No one raised a hand.

Everyone understood when he and co-representative of the coalition, John Shirvinski, said "lawsuit abuse" reform, and started discussing some example of frivolous lawsuits:

•A woman suing a township because they didn't inspect paper bags at a liquor store, after a bottle of liquor she purchased from a store tore through a bag and smashed on a sidewalk.

•A woman suing a private landowner because, when she drove the car onto the private property at high speed, the automobile hit speed bumps causing a passanger's face to hit the windshield.

They also discussed the ability to pay and degrees of responsibility for liability, and how those with no insurance or ability to pay for damages caused through implied or expressed contractual neglect or disregard can pass on the costs for retribution to any other party with ability to pay who has been found to be in any way liable.

Of course, there are attorneys who are ready to represent any "wronged" clients. It is their duty to serve their clients without regard to personal beliefs or opinions held about the client.

But, Wolff said, there are number of issues that the public needs to discuss about the judicial system and the effects of abuses of the system upon all daily activities.

Wolff said the coalition has drafted legislation, but it doesn't intend to seek introductory sponsorship this year.

With so few legislative session days left in the current year, with elections in the fall after session break, and with tax reform and other currently topical issues attracting political attention, Wolff said the coalition has considered it wiser to first generate discussion and awareness to the renamed, and potentially revitalized issue.

Wolff talked about the increased costs and restrictions placed on all because of the need to protect businesses and personal fortunes from ridiculous lawsuits filed in an attempt to take money.

Wolff referred to an incident regarding a piece of equipment manufactured many, many years ago, still being used.

He said that an accident occured and the manufacturer was found liable, for a product that was manufactured long before such machinery was required to have all the protective devices currently mandated to protect people from themselves.

Furthermore, the piece of machinery had changed ownership many times since being manufactured.

The manufacturer had no control over the use of the machine, much less any authority to demand that current owners stop using it, or retrofit it for safety.

Rhetorically, Wolff asked the audience if that was fair to the manufacturer.

He said that the draft proposal the coalition has now would set a 15-year usefull life on equipment, for liability.

The coalition seeks to promote the discussion and possible creation of changes to the justice system that would effectively create a screening system for lawsuits filed, to winnow out the frivolous.

The idea is to set up a preview system that can identify potential frivolous lawsuits early and kick them back to the petitioners or deny them.

The goal is to dispose of the frivolous before they end up costing defendants and local courts all the time and costs needed to hear and defend against such suits.

The problem in a nutshell is this: whether a frivolous lawsuit is successfully defended or not, the burden upon the government, taxpayers and the individuals involved in defense against frivolousness is great in terms of time and money.

Wolff said a farmer could hardly afford to give up the time and money defending himself and his operation from a frivolous lawsuit that ends up being dismissed or successfully defended.

But it can happen, and, depending on the labor and management value of the farmer to his operations, could well mean the loss of a timely planting of a crop, which translates into lost production, and

A FORCE Field Takes Corn To A New Level.

No other corn insecticide controls tough insect pests like rootworms, cutworms, wireworms and white grubs better than FORCE® insecticide. But that's just one reason why farmers who've experienced a FORCE Field of protection — in no-till, minimum-till and conventional tillage systems — stick with it year after year.

The other big reason is that FORCE is safe to birds, earthworms and you. Our 3G formulation lets you handle half as much FORCE as other insecticides. To save you time, money and cut your insecticide exposure in half.

The newer pyrethroid chemistry of FORCE gives you better, straighter stands than older, less effective insecticides. And FORCE doesn't interact with sulfonylurea herbicides.

potential failure of the farm.

To Wolff and many others, there isn't enough risk associated with frivolously filing lawsuits.

It is too easy to file frivolous lawsuits as a means to pressure an out-of-court settlement, which according to some sources, happens frequently merely to facilitate business, not justice.

The coalition suggests that perhaps some penalties could be applied, and that those who are forced to hire attorneys and spend money to defend themselves against frivolous lawsuits should be able to force an unsuccessful petitioner to pay for all costs and damages incurred by the defendant.

Other ideas have been circulating.

What about requiring those with suspected frivolous lawsuits to post a bond that would cover the cost of covering the court costs and minimum defense costs? (Would that un-Constitutionally deny those unable to post bond the right to properly access a civil court?)

There are plenty of examples too of inequities and unfairnesses in the judicial system, but more and more seem to be deliberate gold-digging attempts by clients and/or their attorneys.

One highly visible impact of the onslaught of frivolous lawsuits is evident with the dramatic reduction in public access allowed to private property for recreation.

Of course littering and bad manners have forced some to close their properties to the public, but many more post "no tresspassing" signs primarily as a means to satisfy the recommendations of an insurance group in order to secure as low of premiums as possible.

The reason is to limit potential liability lawsuits.

So what type of people are the attorneys who seem eager to represent such clients in fraudulent, trumped up, or otherwise frivolous lawsuits?

Should they be allowed to file civil suit after civil suit, regardless of the number of cases thrown out, regardless of blatant grasping-at-straws arguments, or otherwise laughable attempts to get their client's case considered differently than what it is on its face?

State Attorney General Michael Fisher stands at the podium before members of the Pennsylvania State Grange and talks about issues such as drug abuse and telemarketing.

Are the attorneys merely catalysts to social justice, or are they the problem in the growth in such suits seeking financial damages in excess of any real property loss compensations?

Should there be no controls or punishments for those attorneys who seek their own fortunes through effectual commissions on damage claims against insurance providers, medical practioners, automobile manufacturers and others exposed to product or service liabilities against large companies?

What about the attorneys who knowingly file ridiculously reaching arguments on behalf of clients?

Are they "exhausting every avenue" in service of the client, or are they instead padding their bills and bulking up their own fees through purposefully misleading clients about the chances for a successful ruling?

Are insurance company attorneys and managers too jaded to fight back?

Are there unreasonable settlements being made to dispose of liability lawsuits that could have been and should have been fought and won, except it was easier for the insurance company lawyers and business managers to throw some money at liars?

Today many doctors spend between 15 to 18 percent of their total income on malpractice insurance premiums.

The cost of doing business, and operating a business has skyrocketed through many different types of mandatory insurances, product and service liability being only one type.

The issue isn't new. Public sentiment has spoken out against the lack of scruples by "ambulance chasers" for years.

Jokes and serious statements have been made that suggest that society at large would be in much better health were it not for those who practice law, especially those who work complicitly to generate large fees.

Attorneys associated with lawsuits against the tobacco industry are reportedly set up to receive many millions of dollars in undeserved riches because they were working for a percentage, otherwise known as a commission, of the total take.

Should that be allowed?

Attorneys associated with lawsuits against the tobacco industry are reportedly set up to receive many millions of dollars in undeserved riches because they were working for a percentage, otherwise known as a commission, of the total take.

Should that be allowed?

Wolff said that current rules limit the amount of information that can be presented to a jury when it is supposed to determine the amount of award for damages in a lawsuit

The jury is not told that the award is not taxable The reason that makes a difference, Wolff explained, is because most people assume the government would take at least 20 percent of that in taxes — just as they would if the money came from gambling winnings

But since the government doesn't take taxes from the lawsuit awards, juries that don't know that can't reasonably be expected to decide what is a fair damage award.

If they assumed that the award was taxable, it would follow that a jury would set a higher award to ensure the damages received by the plaintiff were adequate.

Juries aren't allowed to be told if alcohol or drugs were found to have been abused and/or involved in an accident in cases where a plaintiff sues for damages involving some equipment, such as a car.

(Turn to Page A24)

Wolff said the coalition also is considering setting caps on punitive damages, which are those awards above and beyond what the jury sets for compensation.

Wolff said the amount of punitive (an amount set as punishment) awards are sometimes two to three times the amount of the actual damages involved, because sometimes juries and judges are urged to punish certain defendants excessively in order to "send a message."

Wolff asked, should the plaintiff receive the amount of excessive punative damages, or should it go to the state, or should it go to some other entity?

Another issue that has come up more and more has to do with the means by which a court establishes competency of witnesses to serve as "expert" witnesses.

The rules are loose enough so that it has become widely recognized that certain "experts" are coached, unqualified and biased to whichever side calls upon them to support their argument in court.

Wolff said the coalition position currently is to have "experts" be those people acknowledged by their scientific community as being "expert." They should at least be required to have some experience and background close to the discipline of concern.

Wolff said the coalition organization is directed so far by a 25-member board of directors. Included on the board are six representatives from the medical professions; six from local governments; six from the business community; and seven at large.

The group met to discuss issues and arrived at a number of key points about lawsuit reform that they held in common. "One ofthe thing evident to all groups (represented) is, there is a preponderance of frivolous lawsuits."

Wolff said that in reality, the Pennsylvania Supreme Court has an ability to create solutions, were it to adopt a rule change similar to federal rules.

He said the federal system include a 5-part screening process for lawsuits to determine frivolousness. Wolff said that if the Pennsylvania Supreme Court would adopt those, then the state probably wouldn't need reform.

Working on the coalition with Wolff is John Shirvinsky, who was hired to build grass roots support for the issue.

Shirvinsky said that some people may remember him from working as president of the Pennsylvania Coal Association.

Shirvinsky said that what the coalition has found is that many of what it considers to be the frivolous lawsuits are, in many cases, filed by the same people and by the same attorneys.

According to both men, the coalition is now looking to gain support for the concept of lawsuit abuse change, instead of seeking immediate action before the issue has had a chance to gain public support.

"We wanted to have a draft circulated among organizations that could review it and provide input," Wolff said. "Maybe by next year, after review, we can have legislation introduced."

To build grassroots support, Shirvinsky started by breaking the state down into nine different regions, based on the state's six dominant marketing regions, to create an effective localized issue-campaign strategy.

Berks County was selected as its own area, he said, because the chairman of both the state Senate and House judiciary committees are both from that county.

He said the strategy is to talk to the legislators' personal physician, certified public accountant, neighbors and church members to get them to visit their legislator to discuss the issue and how it affects them.

He also talked about the federal rules (Rule 11) that the state could adopt. He said the organization is looking at developing them for recommendation to the state.

He said that recently he met with member of the Pennsylvania Township Supervisors Association and told them, "Nice cops are bad news for local government."

He talked about two liability suit cases where local government and officials were sued after given the plaintiffs a break during an original incident.

In one case, state police allegedly left a woman off the hook for driving under the influence when she took a turn too fast and went off the road.

According to Shirvinsky, when the car left the roadway the tires kicked gravel back onto the roadway, and to help the woman, the officer reported the cause of accident as gravel on the roadway.

The woman turned around, backstabbing the officer who did her a personal good deed, and sued the township for leaving gravel on the roadway.

He said focus groups were used to determine that "lawsuit abuse" was more understandable than "tort reform."

Shirvinsky said polls were also done, showing 84 percent thought lawsuit abuse is a problem, and anytime more than an 80-percent response is found, it is considered a "good issue" to pursue for getting political change.

The lowest percentage approval was 79.15 percent on any of the polling questions regarding lawsuit reform.

He said those polled understand who is going to benefit from law-

Rail-To-Trail Study Leaves Landowners In A Quandary

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — In March, as part of a $15,400 feasibility study funded half by the state and half by township developers, Dan Zimmerman, township director, met in the fields with five farmers from Warwick Township.

The purpose of the meeting: field questions and record concerns that farm landowners may have regarding a proposed rail-to-trail made up of an old railroad track once owned by the Reading Railroad.

On Monday evening a meeting of the Warwick Township Recreation Advisory Committee was held in the Warwick Township municipal building.

The ongoing study may have reached a new head when a majority of landowners, disgruntled by their thoughts and issues regarding the proposed rail-to-trail system between Clay Road and Newport Road east of Lititz in Warwick Township, told the advisory committee that they'd heard enough.

Noah B. Hurst, whose property borders the proposed trail system to the north, told the directors that there was "no use studying anymore — I think we studied long enough."

Another landowner asked the committee, "Why spend $15,000 if you know people don't want it?"

One of the most critical opponents of the proposed rail-to-trail system is Gerald R. Pfautz, whose farm borders to the north of the trail. He pointed out an article from Lancaster Farmland Trust that appeared in last week's issue of Lancaster Farming that noted preserved farms can never be developed for nonagricultural purposes and using preserved farmland, a substantial portion of land making up the proposed system, cannot be allowed.

Farms that potentially make up the proposed rail-to-trail system include Robert C. Wenger, on whose tract the proposed system crosses through. Also included are Noah B. and Mabel H. Hurst, to the north; Gerald R. and Rachel A. Pfautz, also to the north; Marvin K. and Patricia A. Witmer; and Isaac S. and Ada L. Zimmerman.

This was the second meeting of the committee. The purpose of the meeting, Zimmerman noted, was to clear up misunderstanding of the intent of study — it was merely a fact-gathering effort. No legal proceedings were under way to acquire any land and turn any land into a rails-to-trails system.

The study was funded in half by the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (DCNR) and the other half through developers in the township. The study's purpose is to take into account issues of land and homeowners that live in the Oak Street area of Lititz Borough and extending all the way from Clay Road to Newport Road in Warwick Township.

The purpose of the recent meeting in the fields, publicly advertised to the landowners, was to inform them of the study and to involve them in the process, according to Dan Zimmerman, township manager.

Zimmerman mentioned that there was a list of approximately 26 issues addressed at the farm meeting. He noted to the landowners that the township "cannot purchase the right of way from a preserved farm." However, after the feasibility study is complete and if the landowners show interest in proceeding with the proposed rails-to-trails in the township, then the township can request an "access easement" for a 30-foot wide strip, formerly occupied by the Reading Railroad, that includes land owned by the five farm landowners.

In 1989, the Reading Railroad sold its vested interest in the rails and the right of way resorted back, by law, to property owners. Now it is simply a 10-foot dust lane. However, Richard Hughes from Wilkes-Barre purchased a deed to lay claim for a 60-foot right of way on the property — an issue that also family, daughter Suzann and husband Joe Veppert and family, daughter Leann and husband Mike Moyer and family, along with nephew Jay Garis and Robin Bedford, Karen's sister.

All of the farms are clustered close together in the Kistler Valley. Tillable acres on the all-registered Holstein dairy number about 1,000, including rented ground. There are 175 acres on the home farm.

The farm's beginning can be traced back to a small operation purchased by James Snyder in 1946. At the time, there were 16 cows at the home farm in addition to layers and swine. It was also a huge potato farm, like many in the lush Kistler Valley.

In 1969, Rev. Robert Junge purchased the farm. In the years since, additional farms were added to the farm complex. The Moyers have been managing the farm since 1970. In 1977, the farm became Lehigh County Conservation District cooperators.

According to the district, Junge Farms have installed numerous conservation practices on both owned and rented land to minimize soil erosion. Practices include 155 acres of contour farming, 2.2 acres of critical area planting, 15,000 feet of waterways, 2,070 feet of diversion, 609 acres of contour stripcropping, 2,800 feet of underground outlets, 3,550 feet of subsurface drainage, four water control structures, one livestock watering trough (near a stream that feeds into the Ontelaunee River), and two manure storage facilities. A third manure storage facility is in planning. Construction is scheduled to be under way in the fall.

In 1997, Junge Farms sold the preservation easements of the home farm. Another farm is under easement purchase this year.

Fortunately, adjacent farms have also gone under easement purchases, helping to secure a future for farming in the valley.

If the farms are preserved the way they should be, Ray's wife, Karen, noted the area "will stay agriculture." The more local, adjoining farms that decide to preserve their farms will add to a larger area they're trying to preserve, she noted.

"It's a shame that farming isn't as lucrative as building a house," said Ray. "Your food source should come before shelter."

Moyer plants about 400 acres in corn, 200 in soybeans, and another 370 acres in hay. Of the hay, 120 acres are in timothy and 250 acres are in alfalfa. Another 50-60 acres are in small grains.

There is also some pastureland, much of which is simply used for an exercise area to improve the muscle tone of the cows. The dry cows have access to about 15 acres of land and the milk cows are kept in the barn.

In all, there are 92 milking cows at the farm, including more than 100 head of replacements. The farm sells registered Holstein bulls. About 43 commercial bred are sold and 23 for AI.

A top producer on the herd milked 43,000 pounds last year. One, in the third lactation, is close to 50,000 pounds. The herd, on Pa.DHIA, has a 25,000 pounds average at 3.9 percent fat and 3.3 percent protein.

There are two separate TMR rations, one for the milk cows and the other for the dry cows. For the milk herd, cows are fed a 60 percent haylage and 40 percent corn silage, with shelled corn and minerals. The dry cows are fed a TMR with 40 percent haylage, 60 percent corn silage, and all free-choice timothy hay.

One innovation the Moyers are using is a computerized ear tag system. The larger number on the

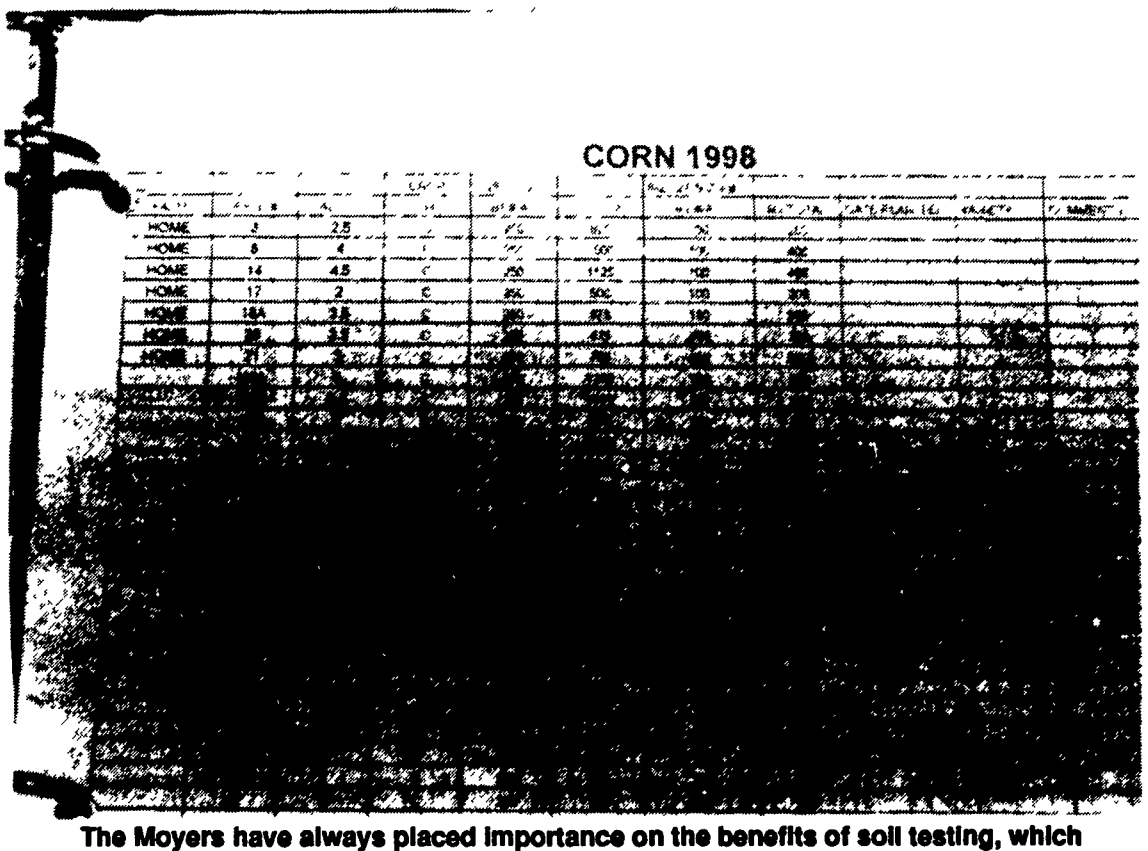
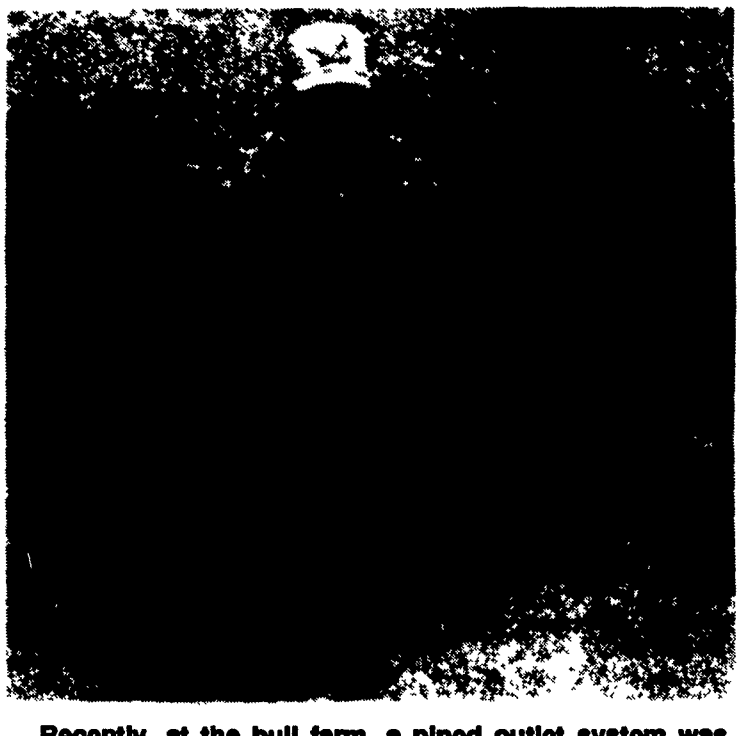
Since he began managing the farm complex owned by Rev. Robert Junge 28 years ago, Ray Moyer has incorporated smart conservation on the farm in the form of terraces, waterways, diversions, and all the items necessary to ensure a more improved farm with better soil. With him is wife Karen. Photo by Andy Andrews.

A big innovation on the farm is the eight-foot high bull gate system. The system, constructed in the winter of 1996 by Ray's father-in-law, the late Harold Roeder, can handle seven bulls with an adjustable headgate. One such bull, a 3-year-old Beltone bull, weighs about 2,500 pounds. The sturdy, custom-built structure uses 2-inch steel pipe and high-tensile tubing. For a farmer to have that constructed by a contractor would cost about $75,000. Here, Jake Moyer looks over the gate system.

Two years ago, Moyer's father-in-law, the late Harold Roeder, constructed an eight-foot tall gate and headlock structure in the bull barn, with two aisles making up seven pens. Manure from the interlocking pens can be easily scraped out. Ray Moyer inspects the headgates.



The Moyers have always placed importance on the benefits of soil testing, which they do every three years. The soil tests are based on about 240 carefully mapped field sites and not only record previous crops and nutrient applications, but also indicate what crops will be rotated into them and their nutrient needs. Here's a sample of the corn planting information.



Recently, at the bull farm, a piped outlet system was installed at the driveway to the barn to help control water runoff, which leads about 100 yards down to a grass area. Here Ray Moyer inspects the system.

lower part of the ear tag "bundles" the breed herd information from the Holstein Association above it.

There have been some important steps to promotion conservation at the farm complex in a variety of ways. One includes all farms on contour strips with waterways and a few drainage catch basins to ensure conservation where needed.

Recently, at the bull farm, a pipe outlet system was installed at the driveway to the barn to help control water runoff, piped about 100 yards down to a grassed area.

There are two manure storage structures, one on the heifer farm and the other at the main farm. The older structure, completed in 1978, is used for the main dairy farm. The structure is an earthen dam with a concrete floor and ramp with an eight-month storage capacity. A second unit, constructed in 1985, also is an earthen dam with a concrete floor and ramp for the heifers. The manure packs are pushed into the holding area.

A third structure, in the process of final approval, will be constructed at the bull farm. It will have an eight-month storage capacity and will be a three-sided, square concrete structure with concrete floor. The manure from the bull farm will be scraped into it from the bull barn, recently constructed.

Two years ago, Moyer's father-in-law, the late Harold Roeder, constructed an eight-foot tall gate and headlock structure in the bull barn, with two aisles making up seven pens. Manure from the interlocking pens can be easily scraped out.

In placing these water and soil control structures, Moyer admitted that he is doing what he needs to do, not simply "following the rules." The award has personal meaning, but he didn't put in the practices just to win an award.

Rather, he views the work as something he would do anyway, simply because he believes in conservation.

"I think it's more of a personal accomplishment," Moyer said. "It's not something we actually went out and worked for. It happened because of the way we do things."

Junge Farms uses about 50 percent no-till and most of the rest is minimally tilled. The alfalfa is moldboard plowed.

Getting good plant standability is a challenge in the valley because of the "two stones to one dirt" ratio of the Trexler shale soil, Karen Moyer noted.

Junge Farms have always placed importance on the benefits of soil testing, which they do every three years. The soil tests are based on about 240 carefully mapped field sites and not only record previous crops and nutrient applications, but also indicate what crops will be rotated into them and their nutrient needs.

The test also indicates what the soil pH is of the different sites and what the lime requirements are. The records also note the farm field number, acres, the crop in the previous year, nitrogen application by total pounds, starter nitrogen use, date planted, variety, and a space for comments (including whether the field was wet or dry, rainfall, weather conditions, etc.) They haul manure to the fields when needed, Ray Moyer said, "keeping the fertility in balance."

Moyer believes every farmer should be doing those things on the farm necessary to keep the field fertility and economic balance in line, he said, "without some law saying we should be doing these things."

Junge Farms recently purchased a no-till planter that can vary in-row fertilizer rates from area to area, from 0-600 pounds at application. Eventually the Moyers hope to make use of GPS systems to map the fields for yields and other information to be used at planting and harvest.

The Moyers follow a careful crop rotation and use nitrogen applications wisely.

Last year, the Moyers were fortunate to have enough rainfall in time to secure a good corn crop. The Trexler shale soil can prove a challenge during a drought. Without rainfall in mid-July last year, the corn crop could have been lost.

Junge Farms would like to expand the cropland if enough acres would become available. They'd also like to add additional heifers if conditions would be right.

Also, all calves raised at the farm if not sold for breeding are finished out as steers. The Holstein steers are grain fed.

A big innovation on the farm is the eight-foot high bull gate system. The system, constructed in the winter of 1996 by Ray's father-in-law, the late Harold Roeder, can handle seven bulls with an adjustable headgate. One such bull, a 3-year-old Beltone bull, weighs about 2,500 pounds. The sturdy, custom-built structure uses 2-inch steel pipe and high-tensile tubing. For a farmer to have that constructed by a contractor would cost about $75,000.

Ray Moyer farms with wife Karen and family. The family consists of son Jason, 27, and wife Keena and family. The Jason Moyer family includes children Cody, 10; Dane, 8; Jake, 7; Cheyenne, 6; Laramie, 5; Wade, 3; and Cole, 1. A son-in-law, Joe Veppert, works with Ray and Karen's daughter, Suzann, and son Levi, 4 and daughter Jordan, 3; Also, Moyer's daughter Leann works with Mike Moyer (related to Moyers by marriage), and Michael, 9; Keegan, 8; and Sara, 2. A nephew, Jay Garis, works as a herdsman. Robin Bedford, Karen's sister, helps with milking.

suit reform — farmers, consumers, governments, taxpayers.

As an example of how serious the problem is, Shirvinsky said the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is sued 50 to 60 times every week.

State Attorney General Mike Fisher was the last featured speaker at the Grange event.

He said the state gets sued about 70 times per week, and the issues range. State highways are always an issue.

Fisher said the state pays out about $35 million a year in damages to travelers on state roads because of lawsuits.

Fisher was originally scheduled to be first speaker of the day for the state Grange, but he changed his schedule to attend a Washington D.C. press conference about tobacco, at the request of President Bill Clinton.

Fisher said he made good time on the road getting to Union Deposit for Grange event. He said he left Washington at 2:20 p.m. He made it to the event by 4:30 p.m.

A spokesperson for Fisher arrived first and took the podium while awaiting Fisher's imminent arrival.

The spokesman talked about Mike Fisher's political positions and spoke highly of Fisher's attributes for leadership.

Fisher explained that he is the state's third elected attorney general. Previous to 1978, they were appointed by the governor.

Recently elected, Fisher's term of office is to last through 2001.

(Fisher's election to the position follows a term that was filled by an appointment required after the state's second elected attorney general, Ernie Preate, was forced to resign, amidst corruption allegations. Preate served several years in low-security prison and has since become religious.)

He said that his job is to be the state's top attorney in criminal and civil matters. He has 180 attorneys working under his command, 350 enforcement officers, and 350 support staff. There are 18 offices across the state and several toll-free numbers.

There are three divisions of concern for the state attorney general office — criminal, civil, and public protection.

In the civil issues, of the 70 lawsuits filed each week against the state, he said about a third of them are filed by prison inmates.

For years, with free access to law libraries, and lots of time available, inmates have filed many civil suits on their own, without representation of an attorney.

Many local-court officials have long been frustrated with the increasingly heavy scheduling and work load required to process, review and dispose of each inmate-filed case, regardless of how frivolous or ridiculous.

On top of that are an increasing mountain of administrative and equally court-time eating frivolous filings by non-inmates.

Fisher talked about a lawsuit filed by an inmate that was reported in newspapers recently. The inmate claimed he should be compensated for suffering because the prison didn't give the right size underwear.

Reiterating some of the message of the Pennsylvania Civil Justice Coaltion, Fisher said something needs to be done to curtail frivolous lawsuits.

Fisher said the attorney general's Public Protection Division focuses on anti-trust issues, and other, more direct, consumer complaints, such as fraud schemes involving repair or home improvement work, credit card fraud.

He said that the Bureau of Consumer Protection receives about 100,000 telephone call complaints and about 30,000 followup written complaints each year. He said that after receiving the written formal complaint, the department attempts to help resolve the issue by serving as mediator.

"All of us are consumers," he said, "so, when we are fighting for consumers, remember all can be victimized."

Fisher touched on a unsolicited telemarketing calls and the laws that govern them.

He said he wrote new laws when he served in the state General Assembly, and he said there are new laws in the works regarding home improvement contractors.

He also talked briefly about the Megan's Law issue and that he supports it. (The law requires those convicted of sexual predation of children to forever announce to local law enforcement officials their past conviction so as to allow the general public to forever identify them as having committed such a crime, sort of like a scarlet letter.)

According to Fisher, the role of attorney general also includes working cooperatively with other states' attorneys general to combat organized crime and corruption. He briefly discussed a case against Toy-R-Us which this week was found guilty of price fixing.

Fisher also talked about his office's relationship to all the local district attorney offices through the Criminal Law Division.

He said some of the enforcement targets are for public corruption, organized crim, environmental violations, and enforcement of controlled substance laws, specifically to limit the availability of illegally manufactured and/or distributed pharmaceutical substances.

He said that his office has concurrent jurisdiction with local district attorneys in drug enforcement.

It is a popular issue with Fisher. He said, "Problems of drug abuse are not just urban problems. We have seen them spread into all communities."

Fisher said there has been rapid rise in the teenage use of drugs. He said from 1991 to 1996, use of drugs by sixth- through eighth-grade students increased from 10.5 percent to 20 percent.

The abuse of cocaine went from 1.5 percent to 3 percent; of inhalants from 4.8 percent to 8.9 percent; of hallucinogenics from 1.8 percent to 3.8 percent; and heroin from 1 percent to 2 percent, according to Fisher.

He added that heroin has become much stronger than ever. He said that when it was a problem in the 1970s, the street heroin ran about 6 to 8-percent pure. Today, he said it runs about 50 percent pure and can damage and kill very easily.

He said hospital emergency room treatments for drug overdoses in Mercer County alone in one year went from 132 to 311, he said.

Fisher said all illicit drug users ought to be punished as well. He said that efforts should be made to catch users and to punish them with some sort of restrictions on freedoms, such as perhaps home arrest with a radio transmitter ankle bracelette.

A seizure of 95 kilograms of cocaine was done at the Philadelphia International Airport a week ago, Fisher said. He said a plane came in loaded with the cargo and the suspected smugglers were riding first class on the plane.

He said the cocaine had a street value of $10 million and that his office made the seizure working together with federal agents. The shipment came in on a flight from Puerto Rico, he said. (The Puerto Rico airport is a key tansfer point for many flights from North America to Central and South America.)

Fisher also spoke out against the Phildelphia city government program of exchanging needles.

He said he would like to see it stop, claiming that it does nothing but promote drug use and hasn't made any dent in the number of transmissions of the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

(A recent published article claimed that the drug exchange program was a success.)

Fisher also said he believes in having an effective and enforceable death penalty, and that he is glad to work with state Gov. Tom Ridge, because Ridge has similar views.

As far as disciplining youth, Fisher said he attended parochial school as a child and was familiar with paddling by school officials as an effective means of child behavior modification, supported with reinforcements from home. "But we can't do that any more."

Telemarketing abuse was another issue raised during Fisher's presentation.

He said that those who receive unwanted telemarketing calls merely have to tell the callers they do not want to be called, and the calls are to stop from that business.

Further, he said it is illegal for any telemarketing to occur between 8 p.m. and 9 a.m. (although the distinction between time zones was left unclear, as to whether the callers' time zone or the receiver's time zone limitations applied.)

He also advised the group, especially those elderly who are consistently targeted for rip-off scams, "Don't deal with anyone you don't know. Don't every give your social security number, bank account number or credit card number."

He also said, that when receiving calls soliciting contributions, request something in writing and talk to someone else about it.

"Frankly, we're too courteous in Pennsylvania," he said.

In other action, Brenda Shambaugh, state Grange legislative director, reviewed state Grange positions on a number of issues and specific legislative efforts before the General Assembly.

Though the House of Representatives worked late Monday, a number were able to attend the banquet after session ended for the day.

Among them was Rep. Sheila Miller, R-Berks County, a strong agricultural and rural advocate who originally spearheaded the effort to get roadside markets on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, as well as some other farmer-friendly issues. She had formerly served as executive director of the state Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee before running for election to her local representative seat.

On behalf of the House, Miller presented a proclamation to state Grange Master William Steel.

Also present was Sen. Noah Wenger, R-Lancaster, chairman of the Senate Ag and Rural Affairs Committee, and state Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes Jr., and Chris Herr, deputy secretary of agriculture.

The evening speaker was a humorous motivational speaker, Dr. Barron Maberry, also an ordained Lutheran minister and family counselor, who spoke about people's sometimes unused ability to control and create their own sense of happiness. Many times it just takes starting with making a smile.

Associations Form Federation Of Animal Sciences

SAVOY, Ill. – The American Dairy Science Association (ADSA), The American Society Animal Science (ASAS), and the Poultry Science Association (PSA) have formed the Federation of Animal Science Societies, of FASS, effective Jan. 1, 1998.

A new concept in association management for animal agriculture, FASS will provide a unified voice for animal agriculture, support common interests, and become an effective advocate for scientific perspectives to the general public.

FASS is meant to be a powerful and effective means for disseminating scientific information, and advancing animal agriculture and animal science, while preserving at the member societies, identity and autonomy.

This is to be achieved by:

- Providing a common voice for representation of the priorities and needs of the industries served by those societies to decision-making bodies at appropriate locations;
- Allowing member societies to better take advantage of opportunities for stronger and more strategic programming in service to customers of those societies;
- Providing common administrative support with expanded service at the greatest possible economy, and
- Enhancing opportunities for professional development and support services to all members

FASS is seen as providing a unique opportunity for these societies, and similar organizations, to form a strong voice for animal agriculture, and provide expanded services at the greatest possible economy

One important aspect of FASS is the unified voice on public policy issues. FASS has appointed an executive vice president for scientific liaison who will be responsible for providing the member societies a unified voice in Washington, D.C.

The business of this office will take many forms, including creating more effective communication with elected officials and public decision makers; enhancing liaison with private enterprises; and creating a more effective voice with the interested public.

While each society is to continue to maintain its autonomy there are to be areas of their association management that will benefit from the sharing of services.

Services include membership management services, marketing and meeting administration, editorial services, production and publication services, network and data processing, accounting, and human resources.

FASS will provide different levels of services to the founding societies and similar organizations.

Rail-To-Trail Study Leaves

needs to be addressed, according to Zimmerman.

Zimmerman noted the purpose of the trail system is to provide a "safe means for kids to ride bike and walk to school or people to jog," he said. He noted the purpose of the study was to obtain input and "at least study" the idea. In the end, it's possible, Zimmerman noted, "we can actually make it a better situation and still allow the trail to exist."

One committee member implored the landowners to keep an open mind as to the feasibility of the trail system. But issues remain that have left some landowners recalcitrant: the possibilities of vandalism, crop damage, personal injury lawsuits, illegal activities, and other concerns.

Zimmerman told the farm landowners that "your ideas are reflected in the study" and urged them to "make up your mind after looking at the big picture and decide whether it's viable or not."

But Gerald Pfautz, landowner bordering the proposed trail, said that farm owners should not be "babysitting" kids for people who live in the borough and township who want the trails. "We're supposed to babysit everybody in the town and let them come out to our property?" he asked.

Another landowner indicated that moving equipment over the trails will cause major concerns and he would have to try to adapt if the trail was installed.

Zimmerman noted that there are 400-500 development-approved homes that would be adjacent to the trail.

But those who have experience in building rails-to-trail systems in other parts of the county and state suggested that the farm owners take a tour of the Lancaster Junction Trail in Penn Township to see how a successful trail works. One committee member noted that people who use the trails can police the trails themselves and act as deterrents to any criminal activity. Other trails, including the Lancaster Junction Trail, have worked successfully bordering farmland for years.

Another landowner pointed out the trail stops at Newport Road and could potentially be prone to "massive amounts of lawsuits" because of major traffic on a roadway.

A committee member responded that other landowners for other projects had doubts, fears, and concerns. But she used the Linear Park example of how the people living around the park and using it can police it and don't abuse it.

Robert C. Wenger, landowner, noted that the study "obligates no one," he said. "After the study, then we just talk. We're just talking — it's not costing anybody anything."

Bob Komman, planning committee member, noted that 99.9 percent of the people who use the trail will use it right and not abuse it. He noted that he has worked on many trail systems.

Komman urged the landowners to keep an open mind for the benefits of "thousands of people throughout the year.

"If we decide it won't work, it won't work," he told them. "If we say it will work, it will."

The recreation advisory committee will meet again to discuss the study and answer questions on Tuesday, May 26 at 7 p.m. at the Warwick Township office.

Donaldson Calls For Action At Legislative Banquet

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The leader of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) has called for action by the state General Assembly on legislation to protect property rights and implement local tax reform.

PFB President Guy Donaldson also recommended legislative action to reform the civil justice system and to make Pennsylvania part of the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact.

Donaldson issued the call for action during a recent banquet highlighting the PFB's annual Harrisburg legislative day activities. About 300 farmers and state legislators attended the banquet at the Ramada Inn on Market Square in Harrisburg.

Earlier in the day, the farmers had visited members of the General Assembly to voice the farm organization's policies of support for legislation on issues affecting agriculture.

PFB is a voluntary, statewide organization representing 25,247 member families in 54 county farm bureaus.

Calling voter approval of the "homestead" exemption referendum last fall a "giant step forward," Donaldson outlined what Farm Bureau believes are the correct ingredients for local tax reform.

"A tax reform package must have the flexibility for the local municipality to be able to pick the 'right mix' of taxes to meet local needs," he said. That mix should include property taxes, income taxes and sales taxes, he added.

"Farm Bureau wants local tax reform with meaningful reductions in real property taxes," he said, adding that PFB members believe that a sure way of achieving that is by providing universal reductions in assessment value and the rate of taxation, Donaldson said.

"Any interpretation of homestead provisions should include the farmstead property including farm buildings located on the farm being used as he farmer's primary residence."

Donaldson Calls For Action

Farm Bureau also believes nuisance taxes, such as the per capita, personal property and occupation taxes, should be eliminated.

A final ingredient is giving taxpayers the right to vote on local tax rate increases and th eincurring of local debt, Donaldson said. Farm Bureau supports local tax reform legislation, S.B. 2, plus the addition of a property tax exemption for "farmstead" farm buildings.

Farm Bureau is supporting a legislative package, S.B. 1248 - 1250, to protect property rights from state regulatory encroachment.

"The three bills would require state agencies to assess the impact of proposed regulations on private property, before they become regulations," Donaldson explained.

The bills would also give the Independent Regulatory Review Commission the power to reject regulations that constitute a "takings" of private property without compensation.

In addition, the bills would allow a property owner who successfully files a "takings" claim in court to recover up to $50,000 in attorneys' fees.

Turning to another priority issue for Farm Bureau, Donaldson, said, "The dairy industry across the nation continues to undergo severe financial strife for many different reasons.

"Dairymen here in Pennsylvania are looking at a self-help type program to improve their market situation. A large factor in this equation is the Northeast Dairy Compact which will enable dairy farmers to receive a more profitable price for their product."

Farm Bureau supports S.B. 170

5-Year-Olds Top Maryland Spring Holstein Show

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — A pair of 5-year-old Holsteins were named grand and reserve grand champion of the 1998 Maryland Holstein Association spring show held recently at the fairgrounds in Timonium.

The pair of Holsteins was bred and owned by the Joseph Schwartzbeck family, of Peace & Plenty Farm in Union Bridge, capping a successful day for the family that also captured both premier exhibitor and premier breeder honors of the show.

Peace & Plenty Couns Tonia-ET was selected by judge Dennis Patrick as senior and grand champion of the show, as well as best bred and owned of the show.

The Gay-Ridge Sexation Teri daughter out of Carnation Counselor-ET was also named best bred and owned, best udder, and total performance winner in her 5-year-old class.

A total performance contest considers show placing, as well as dairy production records.

Fresh last May, Tonya, and Excellent 91-percent classified cow, has a lactation record started at 4-year-old of more than 30,000 pounds, and is currently projected to about 36,000 pounds in her current lactation.

Herd mate Peace & Plenty Just Kaye — a daughter of a homebred Tradition cow (classified Excellent) and a homebred bull, Peace & Plenty AJet Justin-ET — was named reserve senior and reserve grand champion.

The Schwartzbeck family consists of three generations working at the farm and three generations were helping to contribute to the farm's success at the show.

Joseph and Nona Schwartzbeck, sons Gus and his wife Lisa, Shane and his wife (also a) Lisa, and grandsons Davis, Aubrey and Austin all participate in the 130-cow family farming operation.

"To me, the biggest honor of the show is to win best bred and owned," said Nona Schwartzbeck.

She said show day was kind of a blur for her, because several of the farm's best animals were at home in the dry lot that day.

"I think that's one of the reasons it was so thrilling for us," she said, "we were going to just participate."

The grand champion of the youth division show was Ehrhardt Astro Jody-ET, a cow owned by Kevin Ehrhardt, also named the best bred and owned of the 100,000-pound class, as well as the class total performance winner.

The reserve grand champion of the youth division was a senior 2-year-old, Ernest-Anthony SD Tobi-ET, owned by Brandon Kling.

The junior champions were the same for both show divisions.

The junior champion of both show divisions was a summer yearling, Windsor Manor Encor Taz, owned by Kristin Myers of New Windsor. Taz was also best bred and owned.

The reserve junior champion of the shows was a winter yearling, Eastest Lieutenant Caramel, owned by Amy Iager.

which would enable Pennsylvania to join the Northeast Interstate Dairy Compact which currently operates in six New England states. New York state must also join so Pennsylvania can be "linked" to the Compact states and Congress must approve expansion of the Compact.

If the Compact were in force today, Donaldson said, "The consumer would not be paying more for milk and milk products. However, the farmers' share of the retail dollar would increase."

Farm Bureau is also working with the Civil Justice Coalition to reform the civil justice system.

Persons who are injured and are successful in a lawsuit, "often are better off financially than what they were before they were injured," Donaldson said. "The system was not designed for creating wealthy individuals."

This aspect of the civil justice system needs to be reformed, Donaldson said.

Frivolous lawsuits are another problem which clog the court system and boost the cost to doing business in the state. The Civil Justice Coalition plans to introduce legislation that will reduce the number of frivolous lawsuits, Donaldson said.

Karin Buchan Shares Fascination With Heirloom Gardening

LOU ANN GOOD

BLAIRSVILLE (Indiana Co.) — Heirloom vegetables and fruits are attracting new interest among gardeners.

"The taste, flavor, and diversity are wonderful," said Karin Buchan of Blairsville. "You can't purchase such a wonderful array of taste, color, and variety in a grocery store."

To be considered an heirloom plant, the variety must have been introduced at least 50 years earlier. Many heirloom varieties have been brought to America by immigrants. Women often stitched seeds in the hems of their garments or hid them in their undergarments.

Karin became a vocal fan of heirloom gardening about five years ago. "After I saw the size of the plant and realized what I had paid for it, I thought I must have a hole in my head," she joked. But that first taste convinced her that heirloom vegetables were definitely worth pursuing.

After that, she kept finding more and more varieties that she wanted to try. The crop was so prolific that the family couldn't use them all so she decided to try and sell some. Things took off from there.

Karin has a greenhouse with more than 100 varieties of tomatoes and 50 varieties of peppers.

People like the heirloom varieties, but they don't want to bother growing them from seeds. Karin fills this gap by growing the plants and selling the starters.

"The neat thing about my greenhouse is that customers can buy only one plant rather than a six-pack like many greenhouses insist," Karin said.

In addition, she has many varieties of flowers and other vegetables—all grown with organic methods.

Some may ask if heirloom vegetables taste so great, why aren't the seeds and plants readily available?

"They are not as disease resistant as many newer varieties," Karin said. But she hastens to add that they can be grown without using any pesticides.

"The secret is in using crop rotation and soil testing in the fall. Some plants grow better in certain zones than in others," she said.

Karin sells plants for 35 cents each compared to $2-$3 charged by most gardening centers for heirloom plants.

Antique Collectors Keep Farm History Alive

GAIL STROCK
Mifflin Co. Correspondent

SHIRLEYSBURG (Huntingdon County)–Jim McMath of Huntingdon County stands in the wide archway between the kitchen and addition of his 1770s-era stone farmhouse. No matter which way he looks back the hallways or into the kitchen or addition he sees antiques.

What began as a hobby more than 30 years ago has slowly turned the McMath home into a museum in its own right. Jim and his wife Barb have collected more than 400 antique farm toys, 100 plus milk bottles, and many antique tools and household gadgets. They've restored 10 tractors plus an assortment of farm implements. Jim and Barb have collected antiques throughout Pennsylvania, but their most cherished ones are heirlooms they've discovered practically in their own backyard.

"That's called a hanging kerosene reflection lamp," Jim says pointing to a lantern suspended from a rafter. "It came from my great-grandparents, and it hung in my aunt's kitchen. My great-great-uncle carried this pistol holder in the Civil War."

From shelves that frame a great stone fireplace, Jim picks up a rare porcelain-lined iron bucket made in 1874 or 1875. "I found this in Mother's attic. It had bricks of ore inside. I'm guessing it is a vegetable steamer."

Tow of the family's most prized antiques are a fork and a flail, hand carved from oak by Jim's great-uncle. In the front parlor sits a complete case of Workman soda bottles purchased from Barb's aunt. Her aunt's father worked at the bottling plant in Mount Union. The case is designed to store the bottles upside down. Their Hossier cabinet with original jars and spice wheels was built in 1917 and purchased in Shirleysburg at the former Rockview Academy. But Jim and Barb's interest in antiques goes beyond family heirlooms.

"I like to buy local things, of families I knew, to have pieces of their lives," Jim reflects. Many of the pencils in his extensive bullet pencil collection are from what were once local businesses G. W. Crissman & Sons, a John Deere dealer in Milroy and Belleville; Ehrenzeller Lime, McVeytown: Meadows Country Scrapple, Holidaysburg; M. C. Packing Company, Reedsville; Atlantic Breeders; Morton Salt (When It Rains It Pours!); and several 1950s pencils with Mr. Peanut in a bubble of water. He

According to Karin, people love coming to the greenhouse farm, although it is four miles off the main route to Homer City.

"We have critters running around and are kind of laid back," Karin said of the secluded farm.

Heirloom seeds are often part of heritage and handed down through generations. Many plants are taken for granted as being part of granny's garden or something Uncle Ed grows in his garden, but a closer look may reveal that the plants are actually grown from seed saved through the years. Families need to be aware of this or the seed may be lost when the grower passes on.

A prime example of this is what happened to one of Karin's friends. When the family dispersed the deceased grandmother's belongings, they found carefully wrapped flower seeds she had brought from Europe 60 years before her death. She had planted them every year until her death.

"Unfortunately, the family threw the seeds away and another cultivar and memory is lost to us by accident, and possibly gone forever," Karin said.

Many ethnic groups preserve seed as part of their heritage. According to Karin, one of the best ethnic groups at preserving seed heritage are the Italians, who save seeds from tomatoes known to make the best sauces and pastes. The Amish most often save seeds for peas and beans.

Stories are told of American settlers who carried seed with them to distant places. Archeologists have found evidence of ancient South American peoples saving chili pepper seeds from 7000 BC and the Slavic people have successfully preserved many pepper varieties. Russians believed in the importance of saving seeds and had an amazing seed bank. During the last clash a few years ago, the scientists who were barricaded in the seed bank died of starvation because they refused to eat seeds that were stored there.

Many heirloom seeds have a history or story associated with it. Such is the case of the "Mortgage Lifter" tomato. Legend has it that a farmer was going to lose his farm. He received this seed, and grew and sold such a tremendous amount of large, tasty tomatoes that he saved his farm.

Not all seeds saved are to produce food. Many beautiful flowers are grown from seeds passed down through families.

"Many heirloom roses are being rediscovered in cemeteries and along roadsides, just waiting for someone to dig them up and give them some tender loving care," Karin said.

Some of the heirloom vegetables, herbs, and flowers that Karin encourages people to grow in their gardens, and are available at her farm and at other greenhouses that specialize in heirloom seeds, include the following:

• Lemon Cucumber was first introduced in the early 1890s as a novelty but has been reintroduced by many organic gardeners because the variety is fungus and rust resistant. It is productive throughout the season and is fairly drought resistant. It is best used fresh.

• Purple Podded Pole Beans are a French heirloom dated from 1775. The beans are extremely productive and attractive with lovely lavendar-purple flowers. The vines can reach seven feet in height and require support. A bean teepee works nicely. Unfortunately, the beans do not retain their color when cooked.

• "Vermont Cranberry Bean." This cultivar was known before 1670. it is one of the oldest cultivated beans in America. It adds color and is easy to grow, but you need a larger area for any type of storing yield. Storage requires drying.

• "Five Color" Silver Beet or "Neon Lights" Swiss Chard. This is a beautiful vegetable and adds a lot of color to the garden. Originally offered by the Thompson & Morgan Seed House of England, it dropped out of commercial production and was almost lost. It is being offered for the 1998 season by Johnny's Seeds and Shumway's. It can survive the cold and adds tremendous color to any garden.

• "Golden" and "Detroit Red" Beets are good additions to gardens in this area. The Golden Beet dates before 1828 and is from Europe. It does have a lower germination rate so seed heavily and thin. It can be canned and used in salads. Detroit Red dates from 1828 and is an all around variety.

• Nasturtiums were very much part of kitchen gardens in the 1500s — They are edible and the plant and flowers are high in vitamin C. They can be used in vinegars or in salads. The plants lend themselves very well to climbing and color in a garden. The flowers and leaves are great in salads. When planted with squash they will help keep away the squash bugs.

• The marigold, which started out as the Calendula, or Pot Marigold, were the golden flowers painted in assciation with the Virgin Mary. Thus the name, Mary's Gold or now marigold. The flowers lend color to salads. Plant around root crops to discourage nematodes.

• "Blue Solaise" Leeks should be part of everyone's garden in this area especially. Cold tolerant and no pests to speak of bother these gems. They are interplanting companionable — they keep bugs away from carrots and potatoes. They take up very little garden space.

• "Clemson Spineless" Okra was brought from Africa with the slave trade and is related to the Malva family which includes hollyhocks and hibiscus. Okra lends height and the flowers are a beautiful addition to any garden. "Red Velvet" Okra is also a worthy addition. Okra needs full sun and hot dry weather to produce, but is well worth the effort.

• "All Blue" Potatoes are disease resistant and maintain their color when cooked. There are many colors and textures of potatoes that are overlooked. Whole seed potatoes are best for planting. Just think of a red, white and blue potato salad.

• "Rouge Vif d' E'tampes" or "Cinderella" Pumpkin — the pumpkin that was described in the famous fair tale. A decorative pumpkin, used since the early 1800s and introduced to the American market in 1883 by Burpee.

• Tomatoes — Variety, harvesting times, color and variety. These are just some of the best things about tomatoes. Listed below are just a few of many varieties:

• "Brandywine." The most famous of American heirlooms dating from 1889. A potato leaf variety with large beefsteak-like fruit.

• "Yellow Pear." Dated somewhere during the 1600s. Plants bear many sweet, one ounce pear-shaped fruit. Great for salads.

• "Stupice." A Czech heirloom. Very early, excellent tasting tomato. Bears fruit throughout season. Fruit can set easily in colder weather.

• "Aunt Molly's Ground Cherry." Dated around early 1600s. A small husk tomato with a very bushy habit. Can use in pies, tarts or cookies. Keeps well in the refrigerator as long as the husk is not removed.

• "Moon & Stars" Watermelon. Early 1900s. Name comes from the appearance of yellow splotches on the fruit and leaves.

• "Delicata" Squash. First introduced in 1894. It has an excellent flavor and color. The Delicata Squash has compact vines and produces many fruits. Great for small gardens.

• "Cocozelle" Squash. The classic zucchini. Introduced in the late 1800s. The flowers are edible.

• "Deer Tongue" Lettuce. Dated from the 1740s. A loose-leaf variety with leaves shaped like a deer's tongue. Tolerant of cold and heat.

The varieties above are just a few of the many wonderful plants and seeds that are available to the gardener at some greenhouses and garden centers. Heirlooms are a tremendous addition to any garden and definitely worth trying.

Simple heirloom recipes using heirloom produce are:

"I could do that."

Did you ever think that to yourself as you stood amidst the horticulture displays at your local fair and pondered the impressive results of some green thumber's careful cultivation and coddling of pumpkins?

Well, I have. And I bet some of you have, too.

After all, at our local York Fair, giant pumpkins that win the top prize command premiums of one buck per pound. And on a several hundred pound Jack-O-Lantern candidate, finding the trick to growing a blue ribbon winner could prove to be a real treat to your gardening fund.

Thus, a few years ago, and armed with some advice from some local champion pumpkin growers, I ordered up my seed packet of Dill's Atlantic Giants. We have a no-man's-land space between two barns, blessed with protection from frost, several hours of sun and rich, organic, once-manure soil that grabs and hold moisture.

What better place to cultivate a prize-winner?

And so it came to be that the thick, ankle-tangling foliage that fall began to show orange orbs in late summer, some of them pretty impressive in size. But, not a York Fair winner, for sure. Of that I was certain. So the pumpkin remained to finish ripening – since they had gotten a late start– beyond the pumpkin show season. And, in due time, I arrived home late one night from a two-day meeting to stumble onto a front porch piled full of pumpkins. The Farmer had enlisted the help of a cousin's youngsters for the harvest.

Some were given away, one or two became baking ingredients and the great, orange giant remained on the porch as a seasonal ornament. Then one night late in the year it turned very much colder than expected; by morning, we were well on our way to having a giant, orange puddle of pumpkin mush oozing across the front porch.

A good quantity of the large, flat seeds were salvaged and stored in the refrigerator. Some were shared with interested friends.

Last spring about this time, only one of the several pea-pots filled with sterilized soil and planted with the giant pumpkin seeds had germinated. I carefully coddled it, figuring I would put more seeds into the ground when it was planted, hopefully to grow other vines and ultimately have some for cross germination. One evening in May, I carefully planted the single pot of giant pumpkin potential, along with more of the saved seeds, as well as started plants and seeds of some smaller types.

That night, the heifers in the pen next to the barn escaped and ran rampant through the pumpkin planting. I don't think they did that another night last summer.

OK, OK. I surrendered. If there were to be no pumpkins between the barns last season, we would just have to live with it. Then our El Nino drought set in– and hardly anyone had local pumpkins last season. Nevertheless, there were still a couple hundred-pounders painstakingly cultivated around the area, carefully and faithfully watered all summer. But not nearly as many as in previous years, based on the fair's giant pumpkin competition.

Now, it's time again. Actually, it's probably past time and the veterans no doubt have their plants started and growing happily under lights. So I'm behind before I begin.

Nevertheless, seeds are started in sterile-soil-filled pea pots, black plastic will go down for warmth and weed control and this die-hard will try once more.

Prize winning is not the end goal.

The end goal is to watch them grow – and the light they spark in the eyes of a youngster carting off the fruits of the pumpkin vine. But you have to start by planting them. Now.

It's time, folks, to think fall....harvest....pumpkins. Even if you don't get a prizewinner, it'll be fun to watch them grow.

And you might make some little kids very happy with your efforts.

Fish—The 'Reel' Nutrition Source

The health benefits of eating fish and seafood are phenomenal. While there are many loyal seafood fans, a segment of consumers continues to shun eating fish because of bad experiences.

It's true—if seafood isn't fresh or if it is cooked improperly, it can be the worse tasting cuisine imaginable. On the other hand, it's almost certain that if those seafood haters tasted some of the delectable seafood dishes available, they would love it.

One of the best kinds of fish praised for its nutrients is also one of the most popular. That is salmon. Fresh is hard to beat. But it is also popular and easy to use when canned. Canned pink salmon can be used in many different ways.

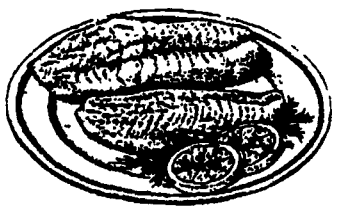
Another popular fish, especially at this time of year, is rainbow trout. In response to consumer demand for trout without bones, farm-raised Idaho Rainbow trout is on the market and guaranteed to be boneless butterflied and natural trout fillets.

For recipes and handling tips, send a stamped, self-addressed, business size envelope to Classics, c/o SY&T Kitchens, 1000 Sansome Street, Suite 375, San Francisco, CA 9411.

Here are some recipes using a variety of seafood and fish. But remember, for good tasting seafood, you must start with the best. It must be fresh. It is worth spending a little bit more to guarantee freshness.

Buying Fresh Fish:

- It should not smell fishy, but have a fresh and mild odor.
- If it's whole fish, the eyes should be bright, clear, and protruding rather than cloudy, pink, and sunken.
- Pick fish with bright red or pink gills. Avoid fish with dull-colored gills that are gray, brown, or green.
- Look for firm and elastic flesh that springs back when pressed gently with the finger. With time, the flesh becomes soft and slips away from the bone.
- Select shiny skin with scales that adhere tightly. Characteristic colors and markings start to fade as soon as a fish leaves the water.



SALMON LINGUINE

2 6-ounce cans pink salmon drained
1 tablespoon butter
2 cups mushroom, sliced
1 cup green onion, chopped
1 cup red bell pepper, chopped
1 tablespoon fresh garlic, minced
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons dry white wine
1 cup buttermilk
1 teaspoon low-sodium chicken bouillon
2 ounces Neufchatel cheese
2 cups frozen sugar snap peas
18 ounces mixed egg and spinach linguine
3 tablespoons parmesan cheese
Ground black pepper to taste
Spray olive oil

Melt butter in medium saucepan over medium-high heat. Add mushrooms, green onion, red pepper, and garlic. Saute 5 minutes. Remove pan from heat, and blend in flour. Pour in white wine and return to heat, stir constantly for 2 minutes. Stir in buttermilk, Neufchatel cheese, and chicken bouillon. Reduce heat to low, and simmer 5 minutes. Add snap peas and salmon, stir gently, cover, and set aside. Boil pasta until tender. Drain well, spray lightly with olive oil spray, and toss with Parmesan cheese and ground black pepper. Pour salmon sauce over pasta and mix lightly. Yield: 6 servings. Sauce can be prepared two days ahead and refrigerated until needed.

RAINBOW TROUT IN FOIL WITH VEGETABLES

4 boneless trout fillets
8 asparagus spears, cut into 1½ -inch pieces
4 new potatoes, par-boiled and cut into ¼ -inch slices
2 small tomatoes, halved and sliced
4 green onions, chopped
2 teaspoons chopped fresh basil or thyme
Salt and pepper to taste

Preheat oven to 375 degrees or heat grill to medium high. Cut four 10-inch squares of aluminium foil. Diagonally in the center of each square, place trout fillet skin-side down. Top each fillet with vegetables, herbs, salt, and pepper. Seal foil and place on baking sheet or grill. Bake or grill 10 minutes, or just until trout turns opaque. Serve trout immediately in opened foil packages. Makes 4 servings.

Fish is easy to prepare and pairs well with many foods and flavors. Low in calories and fat, fish is a rich source of omega-3 fatty acids, niacin, vitamins B6 and B12, and protein.

SALMON FRIED RICE

6-ounce can skinless, boneless pink salmon, drained
2 cups cooked rice, cook according to package directions but use chicken broth instead of water and salt
1 tablespoon sesame oil
1 cup onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, crushed
½ cup green bell pepper, chopped
½ cup celery, chopped
½ cup red bell pepper, chopped
½ cup carrot, chopped
2 tablespoons reduced-sodium soy sauce
½ cup frozen peas
¼ cup egg substitute
¼ cup green onion, sliced

Heat oil in wok or large nonstick skillet; add onion and garlic. Cook over high heat until onion is translucent. Stir in peppers, celery, and carrot. Continue to stir for 3 minutes. Add rice, salmon, peas, and soy sauce and cook for 5 minutes. Push rice mixture to the sides of the pan and pour egg substitute into the center of the pan. Stir egg until set like scrambled egg. Blend in rice mixture and sprinkle with green onion. Yield: 4 servings.

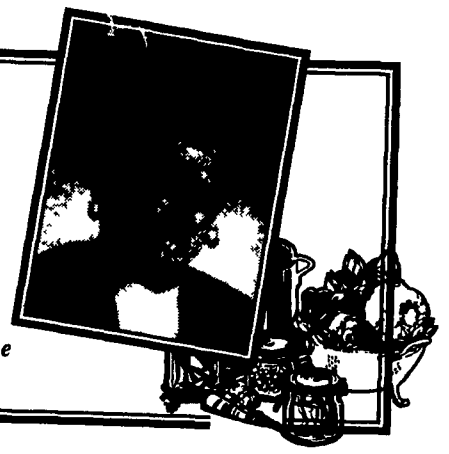
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



Most moms and dads do not always have the luxury of going food shopping alone. Supermarkets management expects children to accompany an adult to their store. They not only provide lots of buying options, but also have seats for young children in grocery shopping carts.

Grocery shopping with children need not be a problem! Children can enjoy the experience, learn and help you too! Advance preparation is important.

Make a shopping list so that you can shop quickly and efficiently. If your children are old enough, let them help you to prepare the list. Organize your shopping list in groups which match the aisles or sections of the store. This will speed things up.

Be sure to feed yourself and your children before you shop. You won't be as tempted to buy goodies if you have all eaten and if possible, shop when your children are rested.

It's a good idea to plan your shopping when the store is less crowded. Busy store hours are usually 3 to 6 p.m. and on weekends. Try to shop on weekday mornings, if possible. Everyone will be rested. Become familiar with stores in your area. Know where things are shelved or displayed.

Shop at a store located near you if possible. This reduces travel time which may make children restless or uncomfortable.

Let your children help you! Have each child add one item to the shopping list before you leave the house.

Let your children have their own list from items you need to buy. Give them the responsibility of collecting two or three items. A "list" can be made of old labels or wrappers from food items that you wish to purchase. Children can identify foods with similar labels as you shop.

Let children choose a new or "special" vegetable or fruit when they shop with you. This will add variety to your meals and spark their interest in helping you. You can suggest several items from which they can choose.

Talk to your children as you shop. Explain what you are doing as you go through the store, OR you may want to have them choose items for a favorite snack. Take the ingredients home and let them prepare the snack from the foods they purchased.

Here is quick tasty snack that children can prepare.

Graham Cracker Topped Applesauce

2 whole graham crackers
2 tablespoons applesauce
small ziplock bags

Place graham crackers in ziplock bag. Push air out. Close bag and have child smash graham crackers using fist. Spoon applesauce into small bowl or cup. Have child open bag and pour graham cracker bits over the applesauce.

Susquehanna County Seeks Dairy Royalty

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) – The Susquehanna County Dairy Promotion Committee is searching for candidates who would be willing to promote milk and dairy products, and serve as dairy princess for a year.

If you are between 16 and 24 years of age, energetic, enthusiastic, enjoy being with people and would like to promote Pennsylvania's number one beverage, milk, to young and old, farm and non-farm audiences in schools, stores, fairs, and club meetings, becoming a dairy princess candidate may be for you.

The county princess receives a $200 clothing allowance when she is crowned and upon acceptance to a school of higher learning will receive a $200 scholarship following high school. There are numerous incentive awards available to the princess during her year-long reign.

For younger promoters between the ages of 10 and 13, consider becoming a dairy maid.

Dairy ambassadors between 13 and 16 may be appointed to assist the dairy princess.

Together the dairy royalty will represent dairy farmers in Susquehanna County throughout a year long reign. To receive more information and an application, contact Kay Garner at 717-278-3905, or Peggy Empet at (717) 434-2582 or 717-434-2682 by May 15.

QUESTION — A reader tasted a delicious cottage cheese soup at the Red Fox Inn at Snowshoe. Does anyone have a recipe for cottage cheese soup.

ANSWER — Mabel Shenk, Lititz, sends this recipe for Stacy Holmes, who asked for a homemade cheese recipe.

Homemade Cheese

2 quarts goat or cow milk
1 pint thick milk or buttermilk or whole milk with 2 tablespoons apple cider vinegar added

Stir well, and add:

4 eggs, beaten

Beat well. Add to hot milk when it comes to a boil. The curds will separate. Put into strainer to drain.

We enjoy eating with molasses when cold.

Here's another recipe from Sue Whitcome, Panama, N.Y., who writes that she makes it year-round. The cheese is an acid and not a rennet cheese so it does not melt. That's why you can fry it or cube it for casserole. You need a 5-quart stainless or enamel pot to make the cheese.

Farm Cheese

1 gallon goat milk
¼ cup lemon juice or vinegar

Pour milk in pot, bring to a boil being careful not to scorch the milk. (Does not need to be a rolling boil). Slowly stir in lemon juice or vinegar. Curds quickly develop. Sometimes you need to add a few more tablespoons of lemon juice.

Strain through colander lined with cheesecloth in a clean 5-gallon bucket. The whey made into "wheyaide" by adding more lemon juice and sugar to taste. Makes a good drink when cold.

The curds can be salted to taste, about ½ teaspoon and slowly stirred in. This is the time you can also add different spices or herbs, about 3 tablespoons onion powder (or less to taste). Mix well and hang in cheesecloth until it stops dripping, about 2-4 hours.

This makes a nice cheese for slicing or to use in casseroles. We like to fry it until golden brown on both sides over medium heat in a skillet.

You can also use it as a dry ricotta cheese for lasagna. Or add cream for cottage cheese, by crumbling with a fork in colander while still warm, and fork it every so often until it cools. It works great in lasagna or on a salad.

This cheese freezes well. You can substitute frozen milk or canned goats milk. The cheese will last for up to four weeks in refrigerator or freeze it.

One gallon of milk makes about 1 pound of cheese. You can half or double it. Whatever you do, you can't go wrong with it.

You can add the following herbs and spices to taste, if desired: Black pepper, red pepper, caraway seeds, dill weed, onion powder, garlic powder, chives, basil, parsley, oregano, thyme.

Make a peanut butter spread by combining:

½ cup ricotta cheese
½ cup peanut butter
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Make a sandwich spread by combining the ricotta cheese with mayonnaise, pickle relish, and salt and pepper to taste.

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for apple pie filling. Thanks to Jean Wissler for sending a recipe that she received from an elderly lady in 1981. Thanks to Karen Moyer, Portage, for sending a recipe that is the same as Jean's only worded a bit differently.

Apples In A Jar

Peel and slice apples. Fill jars tightly. Cover with syrup. Process 20-30 minutes in water bath. Makes 28 cups or 7 quarts filling.

Syrup:

4½ cups granulated sugar
1 cup cornstarch
2 teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
10 cups water

Cook until thick and bubbly. Add 3 tablespoons lemon juice.

Best made with summer Rambo apples.

To make pie, put into unbaked pie shell and cover with dough or crumbs. Bake at 400 degrees for 55-60 minutes. Cover edges with foil.

CLAM CHOWDER

¼ pound butter
1 onion, minced fine
1 stalk celery, minced fine
2 cans clams, diced
2 bottles clam juice
2 large potatoes, diced
Salt and pepper to taste
1 quart half and half
Dash tabasco sauce

Saute onion and celery in butter. Add potatoes and clam juice. Cover and cook over medium heat about 20 minutes until potatoes are soft. With the back of spoon, mash some of the potatoes. Add clams and half and half, bring to boiling point but do not let boil. Add salt (you probably won't need any because clam juice is salty), pepper, and dash tabasco. Serve with oyster crackers.

This is an authentic recipe from Maine.

BAKED FISH

1 pound fish filets or steaks, such as cod, halibut, ocean catfish, or whiting, cut into serving size pieces
2 tablespoons commeal
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon paprika
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon oil
1 tablespoon grated parmesan cheese

Pat fish dry with paper towels. Combine cornmeal, flour, paprika, and dash each salt and pepper in flat dish. Place oil in baking dish; heat in 425 degree oven 1 minute. Dredge fish in cornmeal mixture; shake off excess. Place in baking dish and turn to coat with oil. Arrange fish pieces 1-inch apart. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake at 425 degrees, allowing 10 minutes per inch thickness measured at its thickest part or until fish flakes when tested with fork. Serve with your choice of sauce. Makes about 4 servings.

Jersey Fresh

SAUTEED FISH

1 pound fish filets, less than ½-inch thick, such as flounder, lemon sole, or sea trout
Salt and pepper
Flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon olive oil
Chopped parsley or dill (optional)
Lemon wedges for garnish

Pat fish dry with paper towels. Season lightly with salt and pepper. Coat fish with flour; shake off excess. In wide skillet, heat butter and oil on medium-high heat until it foams. Add fish without crowding. Cook until lightly browned, about 2 minutes. Turn carefully and brown on second side. Fish is cooked when it begins to flake when tested with fork at its thickest point. Transfer to heated platter. Keep warm until all fish is cooked. Sprinkle with parsley or dill and serve immediately. Serve with lemon wedges or dill cucumber sauce. Makes about 4 servings.

Rhubarb For Home Gardens

What's another name for a "pie plant"? Ready for picking just ahead of strawberries, rhubarb has gained a place with home bakers for use in tart and juice rhubarb pie.

Popular for cooks on the farm as well as gourmet kitchens, one cup of rhubarb contains relatively few calories: 20.

Popular for its bittersweet taste by English farmers in the 19th century stalks have been improved over the years in color, tenderness, juiciness, and flavor.

Harvesting rhubarb is easy. Harvest the leaf stalks for a short period during its second year and full harvest period (8-10 weeks) during the third growing season and there after. Pull the stalk upward and to the side rather than cutting with a knife. Look for rhubarb fresh (in season), canned or frozen. Clean the reddish stalks by washing under cold water.

Rhubarb plants are fairly pest resistant and tolerant of high soil acidity. Watch for flower stalk to develop each season. Remove the flower stalk by cutting as soon as it appears.

Rhubarb is grown by planting pieces or buds of rhubarb crowns or cuttings. Rhubarb has a large storage root. If you have a friend who has had a rhubarb patch for several years you may be able to convince them that the rhubarb crown needs dividing.

Commercially, crowns are divided after new plants have grown for about four years. If numerous small stalks indicate that the crowns are becoming crowded, its time to divide. Saving your own seed is not recommended. Rhubarb seedlings are not "true to type" of parent plants.

As spring progresses watch for new buds to emerge, and divide them before they grow beyond 6 to 8 inches. At this stage cut down through the crown between the buds, so that a large piece of the storage root will be attached to each bud. Crown pieces may be stored in a cool, dark basement for a week or two before planting.

Plant crown pieces in early spring in soil enriched with humus or compost and a generous heap of well-rotted cow manure (or dehydrated type for a small patch). Pieces are usually transplanted three feet apart in rows four to five feet apart. Cover pieces with two to three inches of soil. Since rhubarb grows for more than one season, plant at the edge of the garden or along a fence. Do not harvest at all the first season. Remove any seed stalks that form.

Place plants in a garden spot that will not be disturbed. The average family only needs one or two plants. By forcing, you can grow rhubarb indoors during the winter. In late fall, dig up a few plants and place them in a protected place where they will freeze, but not dry out. Roots left outdoors to freeze should be covered lightly with soil. After freezing for several weeks, place the roots in a container and cover the crowns with 2-3 inches of soil or sand. The plants should be grown in darkness or semidarkness for best color and quality. The ideal temperature range is 50°-65° F.

Students Plant Trees On Earth Day

JINNY WILT
Adams Co. Correspondent

Earth Day took on a special meaning for 21 high school students from Bermudian Springs School District who took part in planting trees along an eroded stream in Adams County.

Agricultural teacher John Wardle explained that the students – organized into teams – planted 700 black willow, pin oak and hawthorn trees along a tributary of Latimore Creek on the Green Vistas Farm owned by former Pa. Secretary of Agriculture Jane Alexander, who works as an attorney.

Wardle, standing in the pasture near the creek, said, "When you look up through here you can see a stream bank that's been washed away by erosion over the last several years. Also some animals off to the right that are contributing some nitrates and manure and we're trying to repair this area and actually make it better for water quality and wildlife as well as the environment. Hopefully we'll come back in a couple of years and see this area, having instead of a lot of erosion, water running through it, with a lot of tree planting, improving the habitat for the wildlife and eventually improving the water quality because this runs into the Chesapeake Bay."

The teacher explained that for his part – the project was a cooperative effort with the Adams County Conservation District. About 50 students competed in a contest to win the right to take part in the actual tree planting.

David Kann, technician for the conservation district, sited the trees the day before the plantings took place and on Earth Day the students, in seven groups, each were given specific jobs such as digging the holes, planting the trees, and putting sleeves around them to protect the saplings from hungry wildlife.

The species of trees were chosen because they are common to the area and like a wet environment, Wardle said. The stream is already fenced off except for crossings in an effort to keep the cattle that graze in the pasture from polluting it.

Wardle said about 25 percent out of a student body of 550 is taking agriculture at Bermudian Springs. While not all of the students will actually be farming they will become involved in agricultural-related jobs.

Chris Seymore, 17, a senior, said he was helping because he likes the forest "and in a couple year I'd like to see what a difference it made."

Seymore is joined by Tyler Klunk, 16, a sophomore, and Jason Ahlers, 17, a senior, in digging holes to plant the trees.

Ahlers said he took part in the project because he liked to help improve the environment.

Keann said the conservation district received a grant from the Chesapeake Bay Alliance of Harrisburg to plant trees.

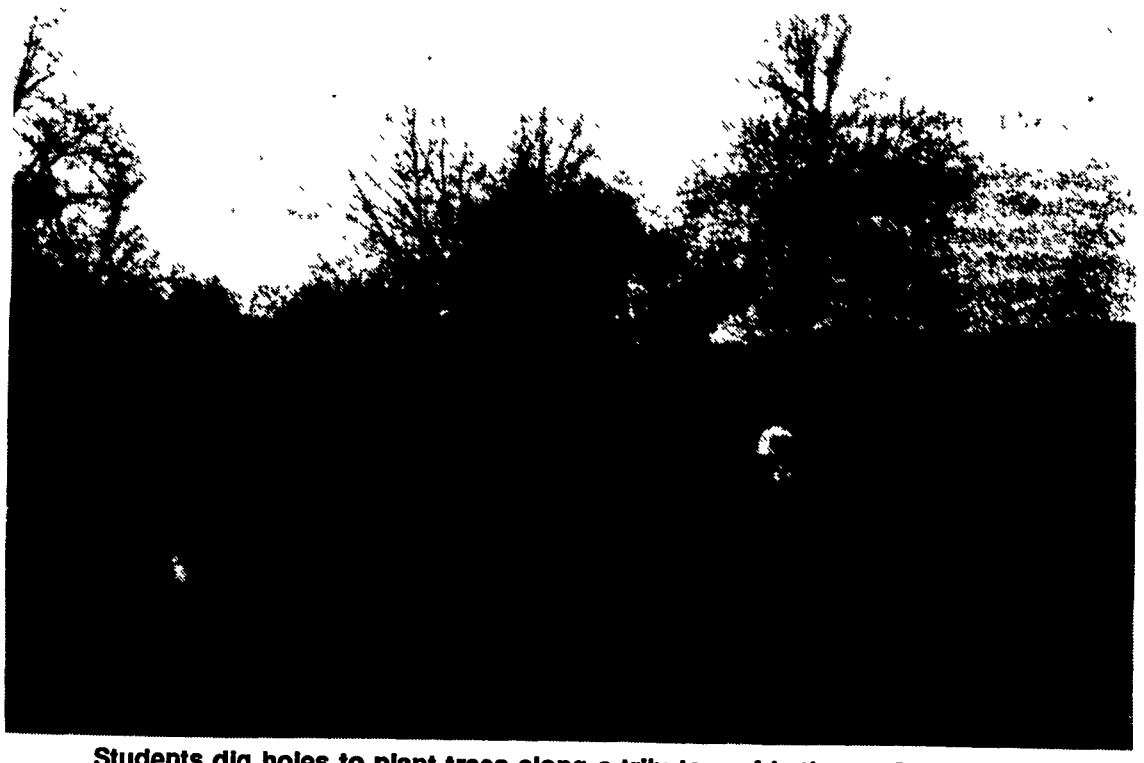
In addition in 1996, Gov. Tom Ridge, as a member of the Chesapeake Bay Executive Council, helped set a goal of creating 2,010 miles of stream-side forest buffers in the Chesapeake Bay Watershed by the year 2010. Pennsylvania's portion of that goal is 600 miles.

In September, 1997, the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources helped coordinate a massive undertaking – named Operation Tree Rescue – to relocate more than 500,000 trees and shrubs from the Musser Nursery in Indiana County.

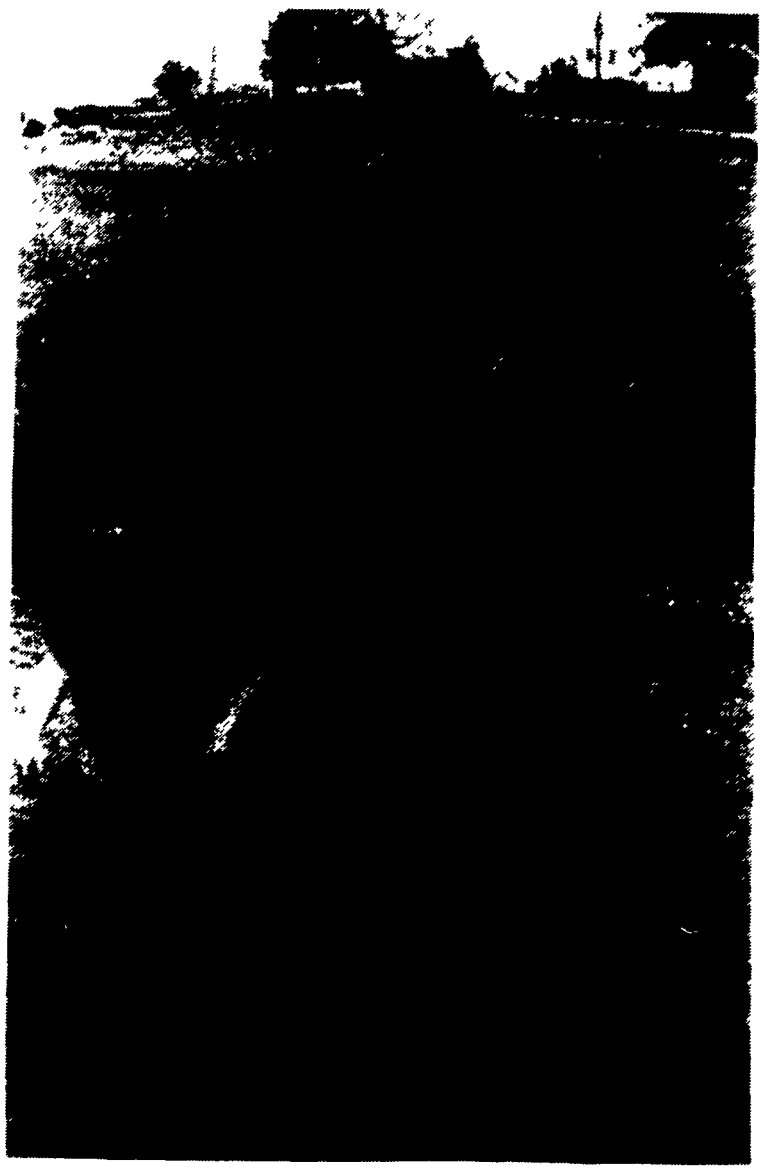
Without the effort of DCNR's Bureau of Forestry and the Conservation Districts, the trees and shrubs would have been destroyed to make room for a new prison on the grounds. Some of these trees were used in the Adams County planting project.

Kann also said the project taught the students what a Riparian Buffer is and the benefits of such a planting.

He explained that "A Riparian Buffer is the first link between land and water. The buffer is an area of trees, shrubs, and herbaceous vegetation located adjacent to and upslope from a lake, stream, or other body of water. The buffer serves several important functions. Simply put, it maintains stream system integrity, protects water quality, and improves the habitat of plants and animals on land and in the water."



Students dig holes to plant trees along a tributary of Latimore Creek in Adams County. The students were part of a group who planted trees on Earth Day in a pasture area along the creek on Green Vistas Farm.



Jenny Westfall, a senior at Bermudian Springs High School, wades through the creek while participating in the tree planting project for Earth Day.

Innovative Toy Helps Diabetic Kids

(NAPS)—When Carol Cramer's six-year old son, Brian, was diagnosed with diabetes, she knew it was critical that he learn how to manage his condition.

To help Brian avoid the debilitating complications that juvenile diabetics often develop, she had to teach him to monitor his blood/glucose levels up to eight times daily, take insulin shots and wear Medic Alert ID.

But, instead of fretting, Cramer created Rufus, "the bear with diabetes." Rufus wears a Medic Alert bracelet engraved with the words "insulin dependent diabetes" and patches sewn to the areas where a child can administer insulin. "It was love at first sight," says Ms. Cramer.

The bear's Medic Alert emblem reinforces the need for medical ID, which, in the case of a life-threatening hypoglycemic incident, tells emergency responders that the victim is diabetic and requires special treatment.

Diabetes education organizations have embraced Rufus as an educational tool. "It's helping kids understand that it's no stigma to be diabetic, no stigma to wear a Medic Alert bracelet, and no stigma to have a medical condition," said Cramer.

To join Medic Alert, call 1-800-825-3785. To order Rufus, call 1-800-SHOP-5050.

Do trees really clean the air?
The green-leaved wonders are our housekeeping crew for the air It all starts, and ends, with an oh-so-important element — carbon All living things are based on the element called carbon, and everything — including plants, animals, and you — has carbon as part of its chemical makeup
So what's that have to do with cleaning the air?
All that carbon would disappear pretty quickly if it was used only once So, nature developed its own recycling plan, and air-cleaning plants are part of it
People and animals breathe in oxygen from the air and exhale, or respire, carbon dioxide gas (There's that carbon again) Carbon dioxide in the air can also come from burning fossil fuels, like oil to run power plants or gasoline to run a car, and volcanic eruptions But green plants such as grass, flowers and trees help prevent the carbon dioxide from building up in the air They use sunlight, carbon dioxide and water to make carbohydrates, like sugars, and oxygen through a process called photosynthesis. In turn, the plants respire — the biological term for breathing out — the clean oxygen for you to use again
But that's not all Because animals and plants store large amounts of carbon in their bodies, they also release the carbon into the soil after they die and begin to decay The soil stores the carbon until decomposers like worms and fungi change the carbon back into carbon dioxide gas They do that through respiration, just like the people and animals do Then the whole process starts all over again

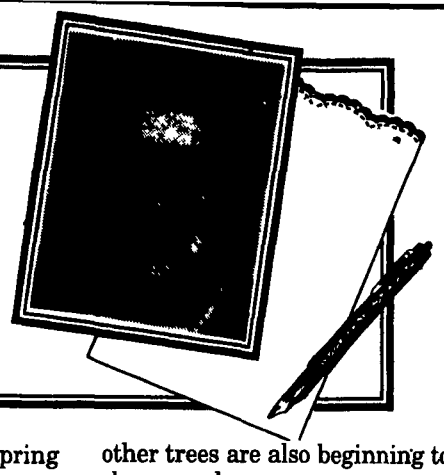
by

Ida Risser



It really looks like spring around here. Maple trees are covered with green leaves and other trees are also beginning to show new leaves.

The row of rhubarb is ready to pull and the lilacs are finished blooming. I've really enjoyed the row of white and pink tulips around our big mailbox. The rose bed has been pruned again and weeded. No amount of plastic or mulch is enough to keep all of the weeds away. My two large iris beds get quite weedy if I do not constantly keep after them.

My onions, the ones that stay out all winter, simply have to grow up through the grass. Encroaching on the onions is the patch of yellow raspberries as they expand their territory. They have certainly spread in the last five years.

My husband has worked to keep his asparagus bed clear of weeds. And, it has paid off as he brings me a large bag full of green stems every morning. The strawberry rows are also looking very nice as he has rototilled between the rows.

We took our grandchildren to a program in which a juggler performed his act. Not only did he use balls and nine pins but also hats and knives. The seven-year-old paid rapt attention but the four-year-old lost interest. He kept asking when they would serve the ice cream. He was anxious to make his own sundae. The years make a big difference in their attention span.

EFNEP Program Changes Lives

LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "I don't feel there is any possible way to thank you for all you've done for me and my family, but I can say with all honesty that I really feel like I'm a good mother, which isn't how I felt before I met you."

These are the words of a participant in Penn State's Expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program (EFNEP). EFNEP is a program that helps families with young children and limited incomes to stretch their food dollars, make nutritious meals, and keep food safe.

Mary Green and Cheryl Griffin tell how the EFNEP program has changed their cooking and eating habits.

Nutrition advisers working out of the Lancaster Extension Service office visit homes referred to them through agencies and schools. Several times a month, the advisers meet with individuals or small groups to teach them how to develop good eating habits in the family. They learn how to shop for groceries to determine the best buys, how to read labels and determine what foods are healthful. The advisers cook meals with the clients and provide them with simple recipes.

This year, EFNEP worked with 270 families in the county.

"Before I participated in the program, I fed my kids hot dogs and chips. I thought I was feeding them properly because I saw they had something in their stomachs," said a single mom of four daughters.

After completing the program, the mom said, "Now I know the

also has several John Deere marbles from the 1960's.

The McMath milk bottle collection includes favorites from local dairies such as Singingbrook Farm in Imler, Kanagy's Superior in Big Valley, Lewistown Pure Milk Company, Royal Dairy in Lewistown, Kay-Vee in Belleville, Morrison's Cove Dairy embossed with a cow's head, and Shirley-Ayr Farms, a dairy that bottled milk from the early 1930s until the 1980s. Shirley-Ayr stores were located in Huntingdon, Lewistown, and Altoona. His Purity (Lewistown) bottle with a baby face had been delivered to families with a newborn. McMath said new milk bottles, made to look old, have no lip in which to fit a cap.

A glass case helps to protect Jim and Barb's collection of antique farm toys. Their oldest toy is a steel-wheel Fordson with a man sitting in the seat, made in the early 1900s. Their collection includes three or four of the first toys made; a Ferguson, a Minneapolis-Moline, a John Deere with rubber wheels, and an old salesman sampler walking plow.

Jim collects signs and sale bills too. One posted dated 1940 lists items for sale at his grandfather's public auction W. L. McMath and Sons. A Hartzler sale poster is dated in the early 1920s.

Jim McMath purchased his first new 1962 tractor, a 4-cylinder John Deere 2010, on his first wedding anniversary, almost causing a divorce in the process! He's restored 10 John Deere one Oliver three Ferguson tractors, and a 1950 Ford truck.

"I'm partial to John Deere because they don't lose their value. They actually increase. Some of these old tractors have doubled, even tripled, in worth. I just like to hear that old putt-putt sound!"

He's also collected John Deere 2-way horse plows, a horse cultivator, a rope hay loader, single-row potato planter, a ground-driven corn binder, and lots more. He received a letter in 1987 from Robert Hanson, chairman of the John Deere Company, for restoring his first tractor.

"When I'm working on a tractor, I forget about everything else. It's relaxing," states Jim. His former hired man of 32 years, Gary Love, helped restore six of the tractors.

"It keeps Jim out of trouble," Barb laughs. "The boys help too. There's a lot of togetherness. I just ring the dinner bell if I need them."

The McMath's have raised six children; Pam, Stephanie, Jim II, Bessie, Bill and Dustin. The youngest still hives at home Jim and Barb. Their son Jim II, lives nearby, milks mornings and evenings, helps manage the herd, and raises more than 400 bred heifers a year. Jim and Barb own three farms for a total of 780 acres (300 tillable). They milk 150 head with the help of full-time hired man George Secrest.

Jim and Barb were instrumental in starting the Huntingdon County Farm Museum, at the fairgrounds near Huntingdon. Only open fair week in August, the McMath's and helpers start to prepare the displays of more than 1,500 items early in July. He takes display cases filled with antique farm implements, many were used in an East Broadtop Railroad documentary movie in October of 1994.

Collecting antiques and participating in a documentary are two of the many ways of preserving history. Retelling old stories in another.

"My dad and two of his brothers (three brothers) married three sisters. We all lived within one-half mile of each other, and all had large families. But in the 1930s, we had only one car between all of us. Whoever got to the car first on Sunday morning went to church!"

Barb holds a sale bill for her great-uncle Israel Shapiro who had a store in Orbisonia. Her grandfather came from Russia.

Myersdale FFA Presents

The chapter's volleyball team, under coach John Hartman was first in the county. Team members are Keith Walker, Bill Deal, David Crissinger, Brad Romesberg, Earl Shaffer, Jason Knotts, Justin Broadwater, Dan Lepley, Mike Cook, Crystal Bittner, Cliff Sleasman, Dave Knopsnyder, and Jeff Haer.

The chapter basketball team ranked second in the county with team members Matt Miller, Charlie Teets, Jeff Haer, Brad Romesberg, David Crissinger, Keith Walker, Earl Shaffer, and Mike Cook. Again, Hartman was the coach.

Fay Hajel, wife of William Hajel, Rockwood and a secretary for 23 years in the Meyersdale Area School District, was named an Honorary Member of the Meyersdale FFA Chapter.

Besides gardening, hiking, biking, and canoeing which Hajel enjoys sharing with her husband, the recently initiated grandmother collects Longaberger baskets and is the mother of two adult sons.

Joanna Wilson, western region vice president, and Jessica Whiting, western region treasurer, were guests at teh 58th annual banquet.

"The world is full of educated derelicts," Whiting said, at the beginning of her formal address.

She shared the true story of a man who, though he had achieved success, could not read. Much later in his adult life he did learn to read, but not until adversity had forced it upon him.

Tonya Sanner was crowned the chapter Sweetheart.

Fay Hajel, right, received the Honorary Chapter FFA Degree at the annual Meyersdale FFA banquet from the chapter president, David Crissinger. Hajel, for 23 years, has been a secretary in the Meyersdale Area School District.

Sweeten Without Table Sugar

1. Use apple juice concentrate or white grape juice as all or part of the liquid in a recipe. Juices must be counted as part of the carbohydrate in the recipe. Recipes prepared with juice become sweeter the longer they sit. You may wish to prepare them the day before you plan to serve them.

2. Aspartame stays sweeter longer during heating if the other ingredients in the recipe are acidic like fruit. It will also stay sweet longer if it is mixed with another sweetener.

3. Any artificial sweetener is sweeter when combined with another sweetener.

4. Sugar-free puddings and gelatins usually substitute perfectly in refrigerated desserts and congealed salads.

5. Spices can mask the aftertaste of some artificial sweeteners. Using less of an artificial sweetener then needed to exactly substitute for the original amount of sugar in the recipe may also make the aftertaste less noticeable.

6. Cinnamon and vanilla make a food taste more sweet with less sweetener.

7.Sugar makes a food stay fresh longer because it helps retain moisture. You will need to cover any sugar-free baked goods well and refrigerate or freeze them to maintain freshness.

8. Adding sugar-free pudding or 1/4 cup non-fat dry milk powder to a sugar-free cake may increase the volume and moistness.

9. Pureed fruit can add sweetness and bulk to sugar-free cookies, cakes and quick breads.

10. Usually you can reduce the sugar and fat in a recipe by 1/4 to 1/3 without hurting cookies, pies and quick breads. This may not work with cakes.

EFNEP Program Changes Lives

proper way my kids need to eat. I learned to cook quick, easy, and nutritious meals that the kids enjoy eating."

Enthusiasm for the program is repeated again and again by participants.

But the nutrition advisers are quick to point out that the program would not be successful without the help of many other agencies and individuals who lend support in many different areas.

Recently, EPNEP in Lancaster County held an appreciation reception to thank supporters of the program.

Susan Fisher, who oversees the program in York, Lancaster, and Lebanon Counties, praised government officials, agencies, and individuals by saying, "Some people just do a job for money, but you do yours because you care."

Some of the participants who completed the program recently told how the program has helped changed their lives. Some have sought shelter from abuse, some have had their kids put into foster care, and EFNEP has been instrumental in helping them put their lives back together so that they can be a stronger parent.

"I learned how to take care of my baby," said one.

"I learned how to make meals when I didn't think I had anything to make it with," said another.

Many of the behind the scenes work is often unnoticed. Some of these go to individuals who baby sit or entertain the children while the mother is participating in the classes. Some provide presents, Easter baskets filled with toys and necessities that are distributed to the children of EFNEP participants.

"We see so many needs and wonder how we can meet all the needs, but you give us the support we need to make our job pleasant and effective," said Brenda Stallman, nutrition advisor.

In addition to reaching mothers, nutrition advisers also work with youth by holding cooking classes at Barnes Hall, a detention center.

EFNEP was started in 1969 by Penn State University's Cooperative Extension Service in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Chris Valentine, nutrition advisor, said that agencies such as WIC, Head Start, and Family Services really work together for well being of the homemaker rather than to promote individual agencies.

"When you love what you do and you know it matters. How can anything be more fun?"

Participants and supporters of EPNEP mingle at the 11th annual appreciation dinner held at the Farm and Home Center recently.

Sweet, Succulent - Strawberries

From early June to the end of the month strawberries should be ready for harvesting. However, the warm, winter weather we experienced may produce an earlier crop this year.

In the early century, French explorers discovered a plump red berry cultivated by the Indians of Chile in South America. They took several plants home with them. In 1714, the Chilean berry was crossed with a wild meadow strawberry that had been discovered in colonial Virginia. The result was a luscious strawberry that is similar to what we now eat.

When purchasing or picking, or growing your own local berries here are some tips to assure sweet, succulent strawberries.

•Select fully ripe berries that are appropriately colored. (see variety chart) Caps should be green and intact.

•White or pale pink berries will not become sweeter after they have been picked.

•Strawberries with bruises or without caps do not store well.

•Twelve very large berries or 36 small berries equals one pint. One pint yields about 3 1/4 cup whole, 2 1/4 cup sliced, or 1 2/3 cups pureed berries.

Popular Strawberry Varieties

Variety	Harvest Season	Characteristics	Uses
Earliglow	early June	Deep red and firm with an excellent flavor. Medium sized.	Excellent fresh and for freezing.
Guardian	mid June	Light red and sometimes rough looking. Firm with a fair flavor. Very large sized fruit.	Best used fresh
Redchief	mid June	Deep red and firm with a good flavor. Large-sized.	Good fresh and for freezing.
Allstar	mid to late June	Reddish-orange and very firm with a good flavor. Very large sized with an elongated shape.	Good fresh and for freezing.
Sparkle	late June	Deep red and soft with an excellent flavor. Should be used within 3 to 4 days of harvest.	Best used fresh.
Tristar	*	Deep red with good flavor. Large-sized.	Best used fresh. Good for freezing.
Tribute	*	Deep red with good flavor. Large-sized.	Good fresh and for freezing.

*Tristar and Tribute are day-neutral strawberries. They are available mid June, and again from August through the first hard frost. Tribute is one week later than Tristar.

Storing your fresh berries properly is crucial.

•Always remove bruised, rotted, or molded berries before storing.

•Never rinse the berries or remove the caps before storing. Removing the cap early can reduce flavor, texture, and nutrient quality.

•Strawberries should be refrigerated immediately after purchasing.

•Strawberries can only be stored for a couple of days in the refrigerator. If held longer than this, a gray mold may develop.

•For optimal refrigeration, place berries no more than two berries deep in a shallow container or tray covered with waxed paper or plastic wrap.

When you are ready to prepare your fresh berries for use, here are a few tips.

•Remove caps and gently wash berries with cool water just prior to using.

•Strawberries can be used in many desserts, salads, sauces, and drinks, or just eaten plain.

•For freezing and canning directions, call your local county extension agent and ask for the "Let's Preserve" fact sheets.

Strawberries are not only a delicious, mouth watering treat, they also are low in calories when unsweetened and contain 1.3 to 3.0 grams of dietary fiber. They are high in potassium and 1 cup contains 140% of the RDA of Vitamin C.

Here are some ways you might try using your strawberries:

•Add crushed strawberries to fresh lemonade or limeade.

•Make a refreshing strawberry cooler by combining equal amounts of sliced strawberries, yogurt, and milk in a blender Sweeten with honey to taste.

•For a quick breakfast, top toasted frozen pancakes or waffles with sliced strawberries and your favorite syrup.

•Stir finely chopped strawberries into softened cream cheese and spread on bagels or toast.

•Make strawberry butter by beating together 1/2 cup pureed strawberries, 1 Tbsp. honey and 1/2 cup butter or margarine Spread on toast, muffins, pancakes, rolls, broiled chicken, or fish.

All homemakers collect recipes, don't they? Below are a few you can add to your collection.

Fresh Strawberry Sauce

1 pint fresh strawberries, wash and remove caps
1/3 cup sugar (less to taste)
1 teaspoon fresh lemon or lime juice
1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract

The crickets come into the house each night and the family kills hundreds each morning when they wake up. The family is planning a fall outdoor wedding for one of their children. Do they spray now to kill the eggs in the ground before they hatch or must they wait until fall to spray malathion and hope the crickets eat it and die? ANSWER — For the reader who asked when is the best time to plant carrots and red beets, an anonymous reader writes that it is early spring and again in the latter part of July. The beets need to be watered in the hot July sun. The reader keeps red beets out all winter if it's mild like this past winter. She mulches the plants with cornfodder if it gets cold.

ANSWER — Perry A. Hilbert, Cleona, wrote that he is almost 70 years old and remembers seeing adults rub their cheeks against a baby or very young person and saying, "Aye, Aye," as a form of affection. He wanted to know the origin or history of this practice? Thanks to Annie Stauffer, Leonardtown, Md., who wrote that Cassels German dictionary gives the definition for "eie" or "eia popeia" as hushabye baby. She writes that in her Pennsylvania German background it is customary to say "Give me an 'eie'eie,'" when playing with babies.

ANSWER — M. Horning, Lebanon, wanted to know the do's and don't's on raising raspberry and elderberry bushes. Thanks to a reader for sending the following information from "Small Farm." Red raspberries are hardiest. Black and purple raspberries adapt to more moderate winter climates. A wide variety of soil types is suitable, but the ideal is a well-drained loam soil, high in organic matter, with a deep and well-drained subsoil. Select a site with full sunlight and air drainage. Some wind protection is recommended to reduce possible breaks.

Do not plant raspberries in soils formerly used to grow potatoes, tomatoes, peppers, or eggplant because the wilt diseases and soil fungus can effect raspberries.

Prepare the soil to a depth of 8-10-inches and plant the raspberries in the spring as soon as the soil can be worked. Cultivate raspberries frequently to prevent weeds and grass from growing around them. Do not cultivate in the fall.

In late November, cover plants with straw or leaves to 6-inches. In spring and summer maintain a 4-inch mulch layer. Irrigation is necessary. Apply 1 to 2-inches water a week during fruiting season and once every two to three weeks during the remainder of the season if rainfall is inadequate.

Apply fertilizer in late fall or early spring.

Narrow hedgerow system is very popular with red raspberry cultivars. Plant a continuous row of canes in a strip no wider than 18 inches at base. Set plants two to three feet apart in the row and space the rows 6-10 feet apart.

New shoots grow from buds at crown each year. Late in the summer, the new canes develop lateral branches with fruit buds on them. Early in the second season, fruit-bearing shoots grow from these buds. After fruiting, the old canes die and new shoots spring up from the crowns. The fruiting canes may be removed anytime after harvest. Cut off close to the base and remove.

Everbearing red raspberries can be managed to produce two crops a year. Allow the planting to establish itself in the first year without pruning.

The following years, prune the stand in late winter while the ground is frozen before new growth has begun. Remove all above-ground growth. A 1-inch to 2-inch stub will usually remain after mowing.

ROSEMONT, Ill. – The American Dairy Association (ADA) unveils the "Say Cheese...as Edible Art! Photo Contest", challenging cheese lovers across the country to create a work of edible art from cheese and capture it on film.

The contest, from now through May 15, rewards creativity with royalty. The grand prize winner will receive $2,000 plus a trip for two for six nights/seven days to Hawaii at Hilton Hawaiian Village on Waikiki's Best Beach. The runner-up will receive $1,000 plus a weekend trip for two to Washington, D.C.

According to recent ADA research, Americans have a love affair with cheese. In fact, the most passionate group, appropriately named "Cravers," consume an average of 22 pounds annually.

"Americans love cheese," says Chef Gale Gand, pastry chef and co-owner of Brasserie T®. Gand, a former art student turned celebrity chef, says creating food that's fun to look at and delicious to eat is easy as "cheese." Cheese is so versatile that any combination works. I didn't have a wedding cake at my wedding. I had a "wedding cheese." It was delicious and the guest loved the creative change."

With the "Say Cheese..as Edible Art! Photo Contest," the sky's the limit. For example, a block of Cheddar cheese topped with vertical stalks of celery, asparagus and parsley becomes a rain forest; a creative combination of cheese cubes and red-pepper flags become an elaborate castle.

These are just a few ideas for edible art masterpieces—and we're looking for many more! To enter the "Say Cheese..as Edible Art! Photo Contest," send: name; address; phone number; age; no more than four photos of your entry; 25-word or less explanation of entry; and a 50-word or less description of your most memorable cheese-eating experience to P.O. Box 81830, Chicago, Illinois, 60681. For complete contest rules and regulations, visit our Web site, www.ilovecheese.com. Or Call Jayne Sebright at Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Assoc. (410) 321-0266.

Do Supermarket Dairy Cases Make The Grade?

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – Some 700 supermarkets in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania will have their dairy cases inspected this spring–and it's all part of an effort by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc (ADADC), to boost milk sales by making sure stores present milk and dairy products in the best way possible.

Each spring, ADADC staff trains independent auditors to evaluate a store's dairy case based on cleanliness, availability of stock, case temperature, and freshness of product.

Photographs of the actual dairy case are also taken and attached to the report. After audits are complete, ADADC staff takes the information and revisits each chain to review problem areas and recommend adjustments.

Why are audits so important? Most participating stores have already had ADADC redesign their dairy case, based on a space management plan which shows optimal space designation for the store's best selling products. Generally, once ADADC resets a store's dairy case, space for milk is increased by four feet, and milk sales increase by about 6%. Independent audits are necessary to help stores enforce the new plan as well as identify where further corrections may need to be made.

New 65- to 95-hp John Deere 6000 TEN Series Tractors

Introducing the next step up in power, comfort, and control

Versatility and reliability made John Deere 6000 Series Tractors the performance champions. Now, the new 6000 TEN Series offers new power and added features, helping make your work faster, easier, and more comfortable.

More power. At the heart of new 6000 TEN Series Tractors is a 4.5-liter turbocharged POWERTECH® diesel. This emission-certified engine delivers a torque reserve as high as 50 percent, a premium boost to get you through lug downs.

Choose from five transmissions – including new SyncroPlus™ Power Reverser (shown) and 16- or 24-speed PowrQuad™ – that let you match your 6000 TEN Series Tractor to your needs.

More comfort. King-sized comfort now comes in a versatile package. An optional Field Office organizer puts cell phones or laptops in order, while improvements such as new form-fitting seats, programmable light controls, and new instrument panels make your work more comfortable and convenient.

More control. Enjoy a smoother ride and greater traction in the field with the optional Triple-Link Suspension – a John Deere exclusive. You can also streamline manual operations on end rows by adding the new Headland-Management System. And with an average of 5 percent more payload capacity, new 6000 TEN Series Tractors easily handle heavy hitch-mounted implements. New power brakes deliver sure stopping for these heavier loads.

For more power, comfort, and control, see your dealer today about a new John Deere 6000 TEN Series Tractor.

Ohio's New Buggy Lighting Kit Makes Roads Safer

SHREVE, Ohio — At first Daniel Weaver did not see the need for consistent lighting on buggies. After all, most buggies are equipped with lights. That should be enough.

Then, one night, Weaver's friend was crossing state Route 39. He had his buggy lights on, but an out-of-town motorist did not see him until it was too late. Weaver's friend was broadsided and critically injured.

"Not all accidents can be avoided, but many can be prevented with proper lighting," said Weaver, an Amishman who operates D.W. Safety Lights near Shreve, Ohio.

Weaver is the distributor for a new lighting system kit designed for buggies. The system was unveiled Feb. 19 at Weaver's business. In includes an improved triangular Slow Moving Vehicle (SMV) sign and retroreflective tape that marks buggies and makes them more visible at night.

The kit is based on a similar one introduced for farm machinery last year that has become a national standard. The SMV sign is visible at 1,200 feet, twice the distance of old signs. It also is made of materials that last twice as long as former ones.

The retroreflective tape, changed from orange on farm machinery to silver for buggies, increases visibility on the roadways. The silver color approaches a more conservative style preferred by the Amish.

Research for improving the sign and lighting system was conducted at Ohio State University by Tom Bean, safety leader.

"We have the largest Amish population in the country here in Ohio," Bean said. "This is an effort to assist them in becoming safer on the roads." Of the estimated 150,000 Amish in the United States and Canada, about 42,000 live in Ohio.

In 1995, Ohio saw more than 125 road accidents involving horse-drawn vehicles. From 1990 to 1993, there were more than 500 accidents with three peak accident times. About 21 percent of the accidents occurred from 5 a.m. to 7 a.m.; 18 percent from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.; and 29 percent from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The kit is being manufactured by SMV Technologies in Odessa, Fla., a company that also manufactures one of the kits for farm machinery. "I lived in Pennsylvania for a while and became aware of the safety problem for buggies," said Betty Thorp, president of the company. "We think it will eliminate a risk and address some of the concerns of the Amish community."

The kit is not just for Amish. It is designed for use by any horse-drawn buggy, including carriages.

Dean Slates, agriculture and natural resources agent for Ohio State University Extension in Holmes County, said the new kits will be accepted by many, but not all, members of the Amish community. "Most are very interested in maximum visibility at night, but they don't want materials that are as visible during the day." However, he does not expect Swartzentruber Amish, the most conservative of the sect, to accept the new technology.

To Weaver, his friend's accident drove home the point that motorists need to know how to identify a buggy on the road. Only a consistent lighting system could achieve that and let drivers know they are approaching a vehicle that is traveling 20 miles per hour or slower.

Weaver also offers reflective leg bands for horses and belts for riders, and other equipment to keep people safe at night.

"A large percentage of the Amish see a need for safety, and most motorists respect horse and buggies. They want to be able to see them at a distance. This kit will help," Weaver said.

Vineyard Walk-Around July 30

The association of wine grape growers in southeastern Pennsylvania (SEGA) has announced a Summer Vineyard Walk-Around for Thursday, July 30.

The program will begin at the Stone Barn Restaurant in Unionville at 9 a.m. and feature leading wine grape experts, including Dr. Andrew Reynolds from Brock University in Ontario, Dr. Barbara Goulart from Penn State, and Dr. Toy Wolf from Virginia. The discussions with deal with vineyard characteristics that produce premium wines.

After a tasting of wines from Mica Ridge Vineyard, a cold buffet luncheon will be served. After lunch, Mica Ridge Vineyard's manager, Ike Kerschner, will conduct a tour of the vineyard. This is a unique opportunity to see established, mature vines trained to TK2T, and various forms of Scott Henry and Smart Dyson vertical training systems. He will also discuss cropping histories, equipment for narrow rows, cropping in the second year, and management tips for vertically divided canopies.

Varieties in the vineyard include cabernet sauvignon, cabernet franc, merlot, dolcetto, carmine, viognier, pinot gris, petit verdot and sauvignon blanc, all grown in commercial quantities.

Reservations received by July 15 are $40 for SEGA members and $50 for non-members — after July 15, $50 and $60 respectively. Call or write Fred Maki, French Creek Ridge Vineyards, 200 Grove Road, Elverson, PA 19520, (610) 286-7754. Checks should be made payable to SEGA.

Devon Enjoys Huge Growth, Booming Economy

DEVON (Chester Co.) – The Devon Horse Show and Country Fair is in the forefront of a wave of prosperity that is sweeping over the horse show industry.

Devon is the largest, oldest, and most prestigious outdoor horse show in the country, but due to the large number of entries received annually, Devon now limits most classes to those horses who have amassed the most points in other horse shows during the previous year.

The horse show, May 22-30, benefits the Bryn Mawr Hospital to which it donated almost $9 million over the past eight decades.

Attendance at the popular Main Line event has grown every year, and paid attendance last year was 109,798. Adding to this number exhibitors, owners, trainers, and riders would more than double it.

The enthusiastic crowds, plus exhibitors that come from all over the country and from as far away as Florida and California, have resulted in sponsorships from both local and national companies and corporations.

Last year, there were 27 companies that supplied sponsorship ranging from $1,000 to $50,000. And this year, there are already eight new sponsors anxious to jump onto the booming Devon bandwagon.

Along with many local businesses, a number of national corporations, including such giants as Anheuser-Busch and British Airways, are also major sponsors.

The cost of sponsoring a fence at Devon begins at $2,000, and having a banner on one of the buildings surrounding the Dixon Oval ranges from $10,000 up.

Leonard A. King, Devon president, a member of the sponsorship committee chaired by Richard M. O'Donnell, a vice president, and his co-chairman, Robert McKiernan, with the other committee members, lead an active effort to recruit new sponsors.

James M. Ballengee, vice president and treasurer, has begun a massive campaign to raise corporate money, and Mrs. Philip L. Kampf, vice president and secretary, is responsible for another big money-maker, the advertising in the horse show program.

Sponsors reach not only the spectators and exhibitors at the show.

In 1997, 82 papers reaching more than 8.2 million readers generated 349 stories on the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair. In addition, four papers devoted special pull-out sections to the show, plus there were daily television and radio reports on the show.

Devon is the tip of the iceberg. There are thousands of horse shows annually throughout the country, and every weekend in Chester and Delaware counties, as well as surrounding areas, anywhere from four to 11 horse shows are held every weekend.

During the winter, local shows move into indoor arenas, most of which have heated observation rooms.

But many Delaware Valley exhibitors pack up and move to Florida for the 10 weeks of the Winter Equestrian Festival in Wellington and Tampa.

Underscoring the booming economy of horse shows, entries in Wellington have swelled by more than 500 percent over the last 10 years.

Due to space constriction, Devon can't accept the huge numbers of exhibitors. However, through its qualification system, it accepts only the best.

Horses and ponies that compete at Devon are worth hundreds of thousands each, with the prices of top jumpers reaching $1 million.

Devon not only draws the creme de la creme to compete in its main arena, the Dixon Oval, including Olympic veterans and World Champions, but the show also brings million of dollars into the local economy.

Hotel and motel rooms in the surrounding area are sold out months in advance of the show and restaurants enjoy a huge boost. Business that profit from Devon exhibitors include rental cars, air lines, cleaners, liquor stores, and local convenience stores.

The Devon Horse Show and Country Fair begins with junior weekend May 22 and Saturday, May 23.

The Carriage Pleasure Drive, beginning as usual at Blackburn Farm on Sunday, begins seven days of exciting competition between top hunters, jumpers, three- and five-gaited horses, fine harness horses, hackneys, roadsters and four-in-hand coaches.

Two new divisions are featured this year, Pony Pairs, with three classes Monday evening, and a Country Pleasure horse section. Nine four-in-hands will compete in evening classes Monday through Friday.

On Sunday evening, three of the four-in-hand exhibitors, John Landon, Louisa Plummer and Harry Witteveen, will present an exhibition of random driving in which three horses, only one of which is in shafts, are presented one behind the other. It is the height of difficulty in driving.

Two world champion frisbee dogs, the National Capital Air Canines, will perform Saturday evening, May 23, through Monday evening.

The Budweiser Clydesdales will perform in exhibition Wednesday through Saturday.

The Country Fair, featuring almost 40 shops and boutiques, includes a wide variety of enticing merchandise. For youngsters, the fair features a Ferris wheel and merry go-round plus many games.

General admission for adults is $5 if purchased in advance or $6 at the gate. Children under 12 are $2.50 in advance or $3 at the gate. Senior citizens are $4. Reserved seats are available at an additional cost. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the show grounds.

For ticket information, call (610) 688-2554.

Caramel apples, the ferris wheel, and boutique shopping plus exciting show jumping competitions draw huge crowds annually to the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair, May 22-30.

Winners Of Public Speaking Contest Announced

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — Robert F. Pardoe Jr., chairman of the Northumberland County Conservation District board of directors, announced the top three place finishes in the Zimmerman Dodge Public Speaking contest held recently, cosponsored by Zimmerman Motors, Sunbury, and the conservation district.

Joy Lesher, a 12th grade student at Line Mountain High School, was the top scorer with her speech, "Erosion: Washing Away a Dirty Problem." The speech discussed the causes and effects of soil erosion.

Placing second was Tim Furman, an 11th grade student from Sunbury Christian Academy, whose speech, entitled "Magnetism and Improved Plant Growth," discussed the effects of biomagnetism and an experiment he conducted using magnets.

Corey Kinger, a 12th grade student from Mt. Carmel Area High school, placed third with her speech on "Our Precious Waters," dealing with threats to water quality.

Six students presented speeches for the contest, which was held Feb. 3 at Line Mountain High School near Mandata. Speeches were first judged on the basis of a written manuscript submitted prior to their oral presentations. Scores from both the written and oral segments were combined to determine final scores.

Zimmerman Motors provided the three place finishers with cash awards in the amounts of $150, $100, and $50, respectively. The conservation district provided recognition certificates to all students who entered the contest.

First place finisher, Joy Lesher, will give her speech at the Northumberland County Conservation District annual awards banquet scheduled for March 12, at Shikellamy High School, Sunbury.

Simmental Juniors Face Busy Summer

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Junior members of the American Simmental Association (ASA) are looking forward to a summer filled with enjoyable, beef industry-related competition.

Four Regional Classics during the month of June, followed by National Classic XVIII, are on the upcoming calendar of events.

Regional Classics, patterned after the National Classic, are planned at four wide-ranging locations. "There is a regional event within reasonable driving distance of almost 90 percent of our membership," said Ryan Altenburg, the American Junior Simmental Association (AJSA) president from Fort Collins, Colo.

"Regional Classics are a great way to become involved and to get warmed up for the National event," Altenburg explained. "We urge our members to prepare for the National Classic by studying and working at home, and by attending one or more Regional Classics.:

Regional Classics are scheduled as follows; south-central region, June 18-20, Springfield, Mo.; north central region, June 18-20, Minot, N.D.; western region, June 22-24, Prineville, Ore.; and eastern region, June 25-27, at Clemson, S.C.

National Classic XVIII, traditionally the highlight of the AJSA year, will be held July 6-10 in Columbus, Ohio. ASA staff members are working closely with the Ohio Simmental Association (OSA) and Ohio State University Animal Science faculty in coordinating the event. It is being jointly planned in conjunction with the American Gelbvieh Association's annual youth event.

The Radisson-North in Columbus will serve as ASA Classic Headquarters, while all cattle events will be centered at the spacious Ohio Expo Center, site of the annual Ohio State Fair.

Up to 250 AJSA members are expected to participate in junior and senior divisions Competition is held in a variety of cattle-related categories, including a herdsman's quiz, sire summary quiz, beef bowl, public speaking, sales talk, heifer exhibition, showmanship, advertising and promotion, and job interviewing.

Extra curricular activities on the schedule include a dance, a volleyball tournament, a barbecue cook-out, and a festive awards banquet. Also, the OSA is coordinating an area in which parents can congregate.

JUNE DAIRY MONTH

National Limousin Show, Congress Heads To Prairie

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. – Limousin enthusiasts nationwide are gearing up for the 1998 Pride of the Prairie National Junior Limousin Show and Congress and the All-American Limousin Futurity. This weeklong event takes place July 12-18 at the Illinois State Fairgrounds in Springfield.

Whether exhibiting cattle, participating in satellite events, or just watching, this premier Limousin junior event of 1998 promises to be full of excitement for everyone, and even some firsts.

"All the favorite junior events and activities are back again this year with some exciting changes," said George Hubbard, North American Limousin Foundation (NALF) director of junior activities. "The Pride of the Prairie will mark the expansion of the cow camp contest, the addition of a fifth heifer division, and the launching of a new photo contest."

North American Junior Limousin Association (NALJA) members have a chance to give it their best "shot" in the photo contest by displaying their photos of Limousin cattle, breeders, farms, ranches, shows and sales. NALJA members don't even have to attend the show to participate in this inaugural event.

Youth attending the show and congress will find the week starting with educational opportunities through a leadership workshop and the annual NALJA membership meeting.

Alan Petzold of Canute, Okla. will lead off the show ring judging on Wednesday, July 15, as the judge for both the Bred and Owned Heifer and Bull Show and the Limousin Steer Show.

Following Wednesday evening's finals in the cow camp and quiz bowl, the Limouselles host 6th annual beef cook-off featuring Limousin beef. Teams of youth and adults will display their favorite beef dishes, with a little creative presentation along the way.

On Thursday, July 16, Frank Jackson of Bentonville, Ark. takes over judging duties as the lead judge for the National Junior Limousin Heifer Show. The All-American Limousin Sale of Sales wraps up Thursday's events.

The judging contest and senior showmanship highlight Friday's activities, followed by the NALJA awards banquet and dance. Limousin events conclude with the All-American Limousin Futurity Female and Bull Show on Saturday, July 18.

Throughout the week, juniors will continue to show their talents in state booth, herdmanship, judging, speaking, and sales talk contests.

Entry deadline is May 15. Entry forms can be obtained by contacting the NALF office or on the internet at www.nalf.org. For more information contact NALF at (303) 220-1693 or via email at Limousin@nalf.org.

Southeast Site For Limousin Excitement

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. – Youth from across the east should mark June 19-21 on their calendar and head to Murfreesboro, Tenn. for the Eastern Regional Junior Limousin Show and Southeast Summer Classic Open Limousin Show.

This exciting three-day event at the Middle Tennessee State University Livestock Center will be hosted by the Southeastern Limousin Breeders Association (SELBA) and sponsored by the North American Limousin Junior Association (NALJA).

"NALJA welcomes interested youth to be a part of this regional Limousin event," said George Hubbard, North American Limousin Foundation (NALF) director of junior activities. "Junior members can participate in the annual quiz bowl contest and leadership workshop, plus enjoy a barbecue and volleyball game."

Festivities will kick off on Friday, June 19, with cattle check-in and registration. On Saturday the Eastern Regional Junior events include showmanship, market steer, breeding heifer, and bred and owned bull and female shows. New this year is the "SELBA Stampede" benefit auction on Saturday evening.

Sunday's Southeast Summer Classic Open Limousin Show is a NALF Level II Medal of Excellence point show.

Events at the Eastern Regional will be valuable practice for youth planning to attend the 1998 Pride of the Prairie National Junior Limousin Show and Congress in Springfield, Ill. July 12-18.

If you are interested in NALJA or the Limousin breed, plan to attend these fun-filled, educational events. Entry deadline is May 15. Entry forms can be obtained by contacting the NALF office or on the internet at www.nalf.org.

For more information, contact the North American Limousin Foundation at (303) 220-1693 or via email at Limousin@nalf.org.

Auto-rest shanks with 20" of trip height allows for non-stop tillage Parabolic shanks lift and fracture the soil. 39" of underframe clearance assures trouble free operation even in heavy residue.

FLAIL SHREDDERS

Flail Shreader Heaviest gearbox on the market eliminates the number one cause of downtime. Either cup or side slicer knives. 540 or 1000 RPM.

SOIL COMMANDERS
4-5-7-9 Shanks

The Brillion Soil Commanders take Residue Management to the next generation of soil conservation efficiency.

The Soil Commanders are versatile tillage tools designed to meet the needs of the mid-size farmer who uses a 150-200 H P tractor One of the keys to the machine's versatility is that it uses interchangeable shank legs and individually mounted disk assemblies instead of a disk gang This makes possible a machine with disk assemblies on the front and rear of the frame with chisel plow or deep-ripper shanks on 15", 24", 27" or 30" spacings

Nutrient Management Planning Costs

Leon Ressler
Extension Agent
Agriculture/Environment

The Pennsylvania Nutrient Management Law created a program to certify commercial nutrient management planners. Approximately two hundred people have been provisionally certified to write plans in Pennsylvania. The provisional tag will be removed from the certification status after three plans have been written and approved. Concentrated animal operations (those with two animal units per acre) which were in existence when the law became effective (October 1, 1997) have until September 30, 1998 to submit a nutrient management plan for their operations.

The cost for most nutrient management plans will fall in the $300-$800 range. What factors will effect the cost of a commercially written plan? Simply put, the cost of the plan is really influenced by the amount of time the planner has invested. So the more information you can provide the planner the less the plan will cost you. For example if you can provide a good map from an aerial photograph, up to date soil tests and manure tests this will help keep the cost down. However if you provide your own soil and manure tests the testing costs will not be eligible for cost share. Other factors which will impact the cost include the number of acres in the plan, the number of individual fields, the number of different crops and the number of manure types on the operation. The more complex the operation the more the plan will cost. Exporting of manure is fairly simple from a planning standpoint so if a large portion of manure is exported this will tend to reduce the cost of the plan.

Some planners price the project on an acre basis and most plans will fall into the $3-$6 per acre range. Usually this price includes soil tests as well as taking the samples (one test for each 10-20 acres). Generally one manure test is included in this price. If the commercial planner includes these testing expenses in the plan cost, these costs will be eligible for cost share. Some planners will quote a price based on information about your operation learned during a short phone conversation. Some planners will bill on an hourly rate basis.

Cost sharing is available for nutrient management planning. Cost share must be approved prior to the beginning of the planning process so if you are interested in cost share funds contact your local conservation district to obtain approval.

For commercially developed plans cost share for a farm of 0-50 acres is 75% of actual costs not to exceed $250. For 50 or more acres the cost share is 75% of costs not to exceed $4 per acre or $800 per operation. Cost share funds are available for farmer developed plans as well. For a plan developed by an individual for his own operation the cost share is $200 for an operation of up to 50 acres. For an operation over 50 acres the cost share is $3 per acre not to exceed $800 per operation. Only concentrated animal operations will be eligible for cost share funds in the first year of the program. After October 1, 1998 voluntary nutrient management plans will be able to receive cost share funds as well.

If you decide you would like to become certified to write your own plan there is still opportunity to attend some training sessions and take the exam by mid summer. This will still allow you to have your plan completed by the September 30 deadline for submitting plans for concentrated animal operations. An optional training session on soil fertility and manure management will be held in Lancaster on June 23. The required precertification training will be held in Lancaster on June 30. The certification exam will be offered in Lancaster on July 8th. All three of these events will be held at The Farm and Home Center located at 1383 Arcadia Road Lancaster. To register please contact Leon Ressler at (717)-394-6851.

Hosts Open House

LOWELLVILLE (Lawrence Co.) – Yeo Farms hosted its 12th annual open house for young people at the farm on Saturday, April 18.

Twenty-nine youth from Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Maryland participated in the livestock judging contest that morning. Twenty-eight lambs were then sold in the Yeo Farms Club Lamb Sale that afternoon.

The number of head sold at Yeo Farms Club Lamb was up this year, and top prices were high this year than last. Four ewe lambs sold with prices up to $130 and 24 wether lambs sold with prices up to $275.

Susan Cunningham, of Hanoverton, Ohio, was the buyer for the two highest priced lambs. Other top-price lambs went to Bryian North of Waterford and John Kennedy of Mayport.

The sale featured lambs out of Yeo Farms' Cardinal Creek ram, as well as a ram bred by Yeo Farms that had been a part of Yeo Farms successful show flock two years ago.

Winning first place in the individual judging competition in the junior division was Kevin Farrell, of Charlotte Hall, Md., and in the senior division Melissa Ferguson, of Geneva, Ohio. Out of a perfect score of 400, Farrell scored 365 and Ferguson scored 370.

In the team competition, the blue ribbon of the junior division was captured by a team consisting of Sara Braun of Mechanicsville, Md., Kevin Farrell, and Becky Rice-Overstreet of Charlotte Hall, Md. The second-place team consisted of Michael Farrell, also of Charlotte Hall, Md., Josh and Katie Mast of Mechanicsville, Md., and Katie Roberts of Bryantown, Md.

In the senior division first place was won by a team consisting of Christy Cunningham of Hanoverton, Ohio, Melissa Ferguson, Bryan Hirschlach of Jewett, Ohio, and Jessica Leben of Geneva, Ohio. In second place was the team made up of Jocelyn and Philip DeSenze and Chary Greier – all from Salem, Ohio.

In all, there were three junior teams made up of young people between the ages of 8 and 12, together with five senior teams for contestants between the ages of 13 and 18.

Each participant was asked to evaluate eight classes of livestock containing four animals each. There were four classes of beef cattle and four of Suffolk sheep.

The classes were prejudged by John Allen III. This was the second year that Allen of Armstrong Farms in Saxonsburg was the guest judge. He has shown cattle all over the country, was a star member of the Penn State Judging Team while in college, and is a past president of the American Junior Shorthorn Association.

The "Wild and Wooly" 4-H Club of Ashtabula County, Ohio provided the snack bar for the event.

Division 50 covers southern Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia. New Case Tractors Available

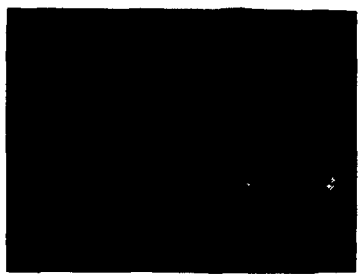
LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) – Five new Case IH MX Series models, designed for livestock and row crop applications, are available for sale at Binkley & Hurst Bros., Lititz.

New models include the MX80C at 67 PTO horsepower, the MX90C at 74 PTO hp, the MX100C at 83 PTO hp, the MX150 at 130 PTO hp and the MX170 at 145 PTO hp.

"Our customers with livestock told us they were looking for highly maneuverable, under-85-horsepower tractors for heavy-duty loader applications. At the same time, our row crop customers were looking for additional horsepower and performance in an MX Series tractor," said Rick Pfautz.

"With the success of the 85 to 115 horsepower Maxxum tractors already in the marketplace, Case IH chose to expand this popular family with models tailored to livestock and row crop applications."

Three new models — the MX80C, MX90C and MX110C — are designed with the livestock producer in mind. All are equipped with cabs and MFD drive systems. They offer up to 37 percent PTO torque rise for superior PTO performance. They also feature viscous fans, in-line core radiators, in-line oil coolers, and turbochargers.



The new 130 and 145 PTO horsepower MX 150 and MX170 bring additional strength to the current Case IH MX Series tractor line. Greater hydraulic, transmission, final drive, and hitch capacities and Magnum-caliber components give these tractors outstanding power for row crop applications.

From the ground up, these tractors are designed for maneuverability. With that in mind, the wheelbase has been shortened to less than eight feet. All three have structural engines for a narrow profile and a tighter turning radius, estimated at 12.9 feet. Even the overall height has been lowered three inches for the additional clearance needed for inside work.

These tractors feature a standard 16-speed forward/12-speed reverse semi-powershift transmission with a wet clutch. A powershuttle transmission with left-hand control is also standard for greater operator convenience in loader applications. Creeper transmissions are available for special applications.

All models are equipped with 2,950 psi pressure flow compensated hydraulic systems with 25 gpm flow at the rear outlets. In addition, they feature electronic lower-link draft sensing, end of row functions for MFD and diff-lock, and slip control functions.

Operator environments feature all-new design and styling with 56 square feet of glass for optimum visibility. For greater convenience, all models come with two doors as a standard feature. They also boast the quietest cabs in the industry, rated at just 73 dB(A).

Serviceability features include a 50-gallon fuel tank, tilt hood with no side sheets to remove, lube-for-life CV joints, and MFD drivetrains. In addition, service is made simpler with all daily maintenance operations performed at ground level.

Bou-Matic Introduces Parallel Stall System

MADISON, Wis. — New from Bou-Matic, a company of DEC International, Inc., is the Grand Prix tilt-up exit system parallel stall.

Offering the dairy producer a combination of both speed and endurance, the Grand Prix parallel stall features the distinctive angled brisket loop.

According to Joe Prazak, Bou-Matic Marketing manager, "The size and unique shape of the angled brisket loop properly positions a wide variety of cows and first lactation heifers for fast, safe milking."

Prazak said, "We studied some stall designs that position a cow at her shoulder — her greatest leverage point — and concluded that the brisket was the ideal place to position cows for safe milking and cow comfort."

The Grand Prix features a stainless steel rump splash panel and reinforced stainless steel manure trough. A deluxe version, The Grand Prix Supreme, encloses automation and a variety of milking components into a stainless steel cabinet that is integrated into the rear of the stall.

Also featured on the Grand Prix are galvanized steel sequencing gates. "The sequencing gates make sure the cows do not short-load. None of the gates will open until the first gate opens. And then the gates will only open in sequence from first to last," said Prazak.

Student Ag Day At Maryland Completes 73rd Annual Run

COLLEGE PARK, MD – It takes youthful enthusiasm, volunteer leadership and a great deal of teamwork to plan and produce Student Ag Day, now past its 73rd year at the University of Maryland.

This year's traditional fourth-Saturday-in-April event was held April 25. With a theme of "Agriculture Through the Ages," it created the atmosphere of a country fair in an urban setting. Hours were 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and the public was invited. There was no admission charge.

Activities centered on the livestock barns and surrounding areas, behind the Institute for Physical Science and Technology, at the intersection of Regents Drive and Farm Drive on the campus.

Typical of country fairs, Ag Day featured student competition in fitting and showing dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine and sheep. Student riders from the University of Maryland Cavalry Regiment gave horsemanship demonstrations and promoted dairy products.

There was music, juggling, kid games, pet snakes and a Fidos for Freedom trained dog act, plus educational displays. Student-led tours provided a look at the new aquaculture facility and state-of-the-art food-processing plant in the nearby Animal Sciences-Ag Engineering building.

By 2:30 p.m. the winners in each livestock class were exchanging animals to determine who deserved the honor of being selected grand champion showman. University of Maryland faculty members and alumni—with little or no previous experiences—completed at 1:30 p.m. in a humor-filled swine showmanship contest.

Barbecued beef hamburgers, chicken hot dogs and the famous University of Maryland ice cream were sold throughout the day by student clubs affiliated with the university's College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Bedding plants and vegetable transplants again were sold by the local student branch of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. The Food and Nutrition Club sold recipe books and fresh baked goods prepared by club members.

Barnyard babies from the Baltimore Zoo, including a llama, were part of a farm animal petting zoo for children.

The Ag Day official program booklet each year carries one or more tributes honoring faculty members in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. This year's booklet was dedicated to a retiring faculty member, a retiring college administrator and the campus farm manager.

Ag Day is sponsored each year by the Agriculture and Natural Resources Student Council at the University of Maryland, with cooperation from other student organizations in the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

This year's planning committee coordinator was Kathleen L. D'Ovidio of Takoma Park (Montgomery County), a senior in nutrition science and president of the student Food and Nutrition Club.

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY

Jennifer Bilheimer of Brooklyn, an animal sciences and pre-veterinary science junior, was in charge of space allocations and permits/invitations. She represented Alpha Zeta, an agricultural honors fraternity. Erin M. Thomas of Lake Shore, a food science junior, sold recipe books for the student Food and Nutrition Club and souvenirs for the Ag Student Council. She is first vice president of the council. Bernard M. Schultz, also of Lake Shore, set up a display promoting the Agriculture and Natural Resources Student Council. He is the council historian.

Case Reports Strong First-Quarter Performance

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation announced first-quarter net income of $69 million, up 8 percent over $64 million in the comparable period of 1997. Net income per share for the first quarter of 1998 was $.88, up 7 percent from $.82 in the first quarter of last year.

Revenues increased 12 percent to $1.4 billion, up from $1.2 billion in the first quarter of 1997. The improvement was led by significant year-over-year gains in sales of both agricultural and construction equipment in North America and Latin America.

Operating earnings for the first quarter were $109 million, up 6 percent from $103 million for the same period last year. The growth came from higher volumes and pricing, along with contributions from the company's ongoing cost-reduction initiatives.

Operating earnings were constrained by unfavorable exchange rates, driven principally by currency depreciation in Australia, as well as costs related to the planned launch of several key products in the second half of 1998.

"We are pleased with our strong first-quarter performance," said Jean-Pierre Rosso, chairman and chief executive officer. "Year-over-year sales were particularly good in North America, our largest market, and we continue to see very rapid growth in Latin America, which supports our ongoing investment in this important and emerging region.

"We're seeing strong demand for new Case products, including the new generation of mid-sized tractors and our versatile line of XT skid steers for construction applications," Rosso said. "Customer acceptance of these innovative products has been excellent, supporting our further investment in products that we'll introduce later this year. This investment will contribute significantly to our future growth."

Case made further progress during the first quarter in its established operating strategy of combining growth and cost reduction initiatives for sustained earnings improvement.

Case reached an agreement to acquire certain assets of the Tyler Industries division of IBOCO, Inc. Tyler is a North American designer, manufacturer and distributor of chemical and fertilizer sprayers and applicators. This acquisition will broaden the Case IH equipment line for large-scale production agriculture and will provide another application for Advanced Farming Systems.

In the first quarter, Case began construction of a manufacturing plant in Sorocaba, Brazil, which, starting in mid-1999, will provide additional capacity to build high-horsepower tractors and combines for the rapidly growing Latin American market.

New-product introductions continue to be a key component of Case's growth strategy. During the first quarter Case expanded its line of mid-sized tractors with five new models for both livestock and row-crop applications. In addition, Case launched six L Series 2 loader/backhoes and tool carriers, and added two excavators to its proven 90B Series line.

Three manufacturing plants to date, is starting to general cost savinds.

During the first quarter, the company repurchased 469,000 shares if its common stock, bringing the total number of shares purchased under its share repurchase program to approximately 2 million.

In North America, retail unit sales of Case IH major agricultural equipment units were up 6 percent for the quarter as compared with the same period last year. Retail sales of Case IH combines increased significantly, and the company outpaced the industry in retail sales of mid-sized and four-wheel-drive tractors.

In Latin America, retail unit sales of Case IH agricultural equipment climbed more than 50 percent over the first quarter of 1997. Retail sales in the region again were up significantly in every major product category, led by a three-fold increase in sales of high-horsepower tractors and cotton pickers.

In Europe, retail unit sales were down 23 percent, due principally to weaker markets, particularly in the United Kingdom, and to restricted availability of newly launched models of the company's CX tractor line. In the Asia Pacific region, retail sales declined due to the region's current economic condition. Declines in these regions led to an 11 percent decrease in Case IH worldwide agricultural equipment retail unit sales.

Retail unit sales of Case construction equipment were led by an 18 percent rise in Europe in the first quarter, fueled by major gains in excavators and loader/backhoes and continued strong sales of skid steers. In Latin America, retail unit sales of Case construction equipment climbed 48 percent, as sales of skid steers and crawlers more than doubled as compared with the same period last year. Wheel loaders, loader/backhoes and trenchers also delivered strong gains. In North America, retail unit sales of major construction equipment were up 2 percent, led by sales of wheel loaders and skid steers, which increased at a higher rate than the rest of the industry.

The sales gains in Europe, Latin America and North America were partially offset by a decline in retail unit sales in the Asia Pacific region. As a result, worldwide retail unit sales of Case construction equipment rose 6 percent compared with the same period last year.

Case Credit Corporation

Case Credit Corporation increased acquisitions 37 percent in the first quarter of 1998 compared to the previous year period.

The company's serviced portfolio grew to a record $5.3 billion as of March 31, 1998. Growth in the quarter resulted from Case Credit's focus on new markets and new products, including retail financing through Case Credit's European joint venture, Case Credit Europe S.A.S.

Net income was $19 million in the first quarter, down from $22 million in the prior year quarter. First-quarter revenues increased 15 percent compared to the prior year period. This increase was more than offset by higher operating expenses related to Case Credit's growth initiatives, lower securitization and servicing income, a significantly higher rax rate, and the impact of Case Credit's asset-management strategy. This strategy of retaining a larger percentage of assets on balance sheet, as opposed to selling those assets through asset-backed securitizations, will, long term, generate a more stable earnings performance for Case Credit.

During the quarter, Case Credit continued to aggressively implement its business strategy, which focuses growth on new products, new markets, and geographic expansion. Financing through Case Credit Europe accounted for 5 percent of Case Credit's total retail acquisitions for the period. Financing of other manufacturers' equipment accounted for an additional 19 percent.

Case Credit recently announced the formation of Eagle Global Insurance Company Limited to serve as a platform for expanding its insurance business. Case Credit also announced that it will team with Universal Underwriters Group, a subsidiary of Zurich Insurance Company, to offer business insurance for U.S. equipment dealers.

In the first quarter, Case Credit completed a $614 million asset-backed securitization. During the period, $439 million of retail notes were sold in connection with this securitization, down from $502 million in the first quarter of 1997. Proceeds from this securitization will be used to repay outstanding debt and fund Case Credit's growing portfolio of receivables and leases.

Grain Producers To Launch Ethanol Campaign

EDGEWATER, MD. – Hundreds of Maryland grain producers will be scattering seed tags across Congress in the coming weeks, urging policymakers to extend the ethanol tax incentive to 2007, as part of the "Ethanol is good for the economy, good for the environment, good for America" national grassroots campaign.

Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) is joining with grain growers across the country to launch the Seed Tag's for Ethanol Campaign.

"The ethanol program generates close to 200,000 jobs for rural Americans, offsets greenhouse gas emissions from non-renewable fossils fuels, and reduces U.S. dependence on imported oil," said MGPA President Melvin Baile, Jr., who farms in New Windsor, Carroll County.

"The ethanol tax incentive is simply sound public policy," Baile said. "And we're going to let policymakers know that simple fact by having farmers tear off tags from bags of seed corn, write personal messages on them, and send them to Congress."

Maryland grain producers will receive a seed tag along with their semi-annual MGPA newsletter, along with instruction on how to get the word to Congress.

"We are concentrating our efforts on Congressmen Gingrich and Gephart, but we also want our farmers to let our own folk in Washington know that ethanol is important to farmers here in Maryland as well as to those in the Midwest where most ethanol is produced, said Robert Hutchinson, a Talbot County grain and hog farmer.

The ethanol issue has been hotly debated in recent weeks. Currently, with the support of Senators Mikulski and Sarbanes, the Senate version of the reauthorization of the federal Highway Bill extends the ethanol incentive until 2007. But in the House, Ways and Means Committee Chairman Bill Archer (R-Texas) pushed through a provision intended to block efforts to extend the ethanol credit beyond 2000. This situation has made clear that the issue will be resolved in a House/Senate conference committee, Baile noted, which is why MGPA is joining the efforts of the national Corn Growers Association to aim their grassroots efforts at congressional leadership.

Additionally, Baile echoed the statement of Ryland Utlant, President of the National Corn Growers Association, on the economic benefits of ethanol by noting that it is one provision in the federal Highway Bill that pays for itself – generating enough economic activity to return an extra $3.6 billion to the federal treasury last year, according to a study by Northwestern University's Kelloggs School of Economics.

According to Baile, grain producers and other ethanol supporters across the United States will do whatever it takes to remind Congress that ethanol works for all Americans – generating jobs, cleaning the air, reducing the trade deficit, and securing America's energy.

Eastern Regional Junior Angus Show June 25-28

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — A weekend full of fun and competition awaits junior Angus enthusiasts at the 1998 Eastern Regional Junior Angus Show, June 25-28 at the Farm Show Complex Show in Harrisburg, Pa.

Young Angus breeders from nearly 20 states are expected to enter more than 600 head of cattle at this year's event. Jim Gillooly, Washington, Ind., will judge the two-day show, which includes classes for steers, cow-calf pairs, bred-and-owned bulls, bred-and-owned heifers, and owned heifers. A showmanship contest will also be held during the four-day event.

"The Pennsylvania Junior Angus members have done a great job in planning this event and are very excited to host their Angus peers," said James Fisher, American Angus Association director of junior activities. "For a regional show, this event goes unmatched in size, number of juniors that participate and the hospitality they will experience while there. It truly is a first-class event."

For more information call the American Angus Association junior activities department at (816) 383-5100 or check the American Angus Association homepage at www.angus.org.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21ST CENTURY?

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

76 Cow Total Ventilation System - Denver, PA
Lapp's Barn Equipment can install a high-performance/high efficiency tunnel ventilation system in your barn. A tunnel ventilation system will give you an even air flow throughout your barn of 2-5 mph. This gives you the advantage of better controlling temperature to give your cows more comfort which means more milk!! Also, a tunnel ventilation system eliminates circulating fans, provides summer and winter ventilation and controls fly problems! An optional unit can even automate your ventilation so you will never even have to worry about it when you're not there, so you can concentrate on other things!
At Lapp's, we sell high quality ventilation systems manufactured by Acme Engineering, Acme products feature such things as:
- Galvanized Construction
- Wide Cambered Propeller
- Rivited Blades
- Unique Captured Bearings
- Vertical Support Frame
- Screens Pre-cut
- Totally Enclosed Motors
- Optional Discharge Diffuser Cone
- Optional Belt Tightener

PURINA DAIRY HERD PROFILE

PERFORMANCE and PROFITABILITY

When you talk about performance and profitability it is hard to beat the numbers at Moyer Village Farm located in Dublin, Bucks County.

Clifford Moyer and sons Neal and Dave have 80 registered Holsteins with an additional 80 calves and heifers. They milk and house the cows in a conventional tie-stall barn and farm 300 acres for corn, beans, alfalfa, and grass to feed the dairy herd with a TMR. In addition, they run their own retail milk outlet at the farm.

In 1992, the Moyers made the switch to Purina 36 WCS base concentrate and North America 40D plus. At the time the herd was producing 18,500m.

"We saw what Purina was doing in other herds, so we made the change." Neal said. "What we saw was milk."

Now the milk they see is not in neighbor's bulk tanks. They see lots of milk in their own bulk tank. Since they started to feed Purina, the herd average has had a yearly increase. Today, the latest rolling herd average is 27,901m 877f 866p. Individual cows have milked up to 167 pounds per day and 20 percent of the herd is usually milking over 100 pounds of milk per day. One cow right now has 40,269m in 325 days and is still producing 108 pounds per day-- this on 2X, no BST, no other milk stimulants.

The Moyers give a lot of credit to Purina, not only for feeds for milking cows, but also for their calf, heifer, and dry cow feeding programs. The heifers grow large very quickly, and the dry cows come fresh in excellent condition. Calf Grower DQ, Cornerstone Concentrate, and Prepare are all used on the farm.

"We simply like the Purina feeds, and the Purina people who serve us in nutritional management," Neal said.

Dave, Neal, and Clifford Moyer pose with an outstanding producer that has milked up to 167 pounds per day.
